Report London Ready to Move For Settlement Of Debt to U. S.

Issue Involves Trade, World Monetary Stabilization

OFFICIALS ON WAY

If Agreement Is Reached, France Probably Will Follow

New York—(AP)—With war debts entwined in the broader question of trade and international monetary stabilization, it is believed in well-informed circles the British government is prepared to make a settlement on its debt to the United States.

This belief, prevalent for some weeks, has gained strength with the visit of two British officials, Walter Runciman, president of the British Board of Trade, and Sir Otto Niemeyer, director and financial expert of the Bank of England Runciman will arrive tomorrow on the liner Caledonia. Sir Otto is enroute.

It was further believed likely that, if a settlement is made by England, France would quickly follow.

As payment dates have passed with default after default—the British debt is now $786,000,000 in arrears, with accrued interest—the question has become not only one of debt settlement, but also is related to monetary stabilization, together with the possibility of a reciprocal trade agreement between this government and Britain.

White House Guest

Informed persons believed Runciman is empowered to discuss these questions with Washington officials, if not to open formally negotiations on stabilization and a trade pact He will spend next weekend as a White House guest, but President Roosevelt said his visit was personal. They are old friends.

The conclusion of a reciprocal trade pact with Britain would be regarded generally as a major accomplishment of the tariff program of secretary of state Cordell Hull. It was felt certain by some New Yorkers close to the administration, however, that this government would first insist upon a settlement of her debts.

According to these persons, negotiations between the United States and Great Britain might be threefold including, after the settlement of debts, an agreement on stabilization and the conclusion of a reciprocal trade pact.

France Ready to Act

The reciprocity pact with France has been in effect for some months The French government, of necessity, would have to enter into any stabilization agreement of far-reaching consequences, and the appointment of Georges Bonnet as the new French ambassador to Washington has been widely accepted as an indication France was ready to join with Britain and the United States to this end.

Sir Otto's presence in this country—even though the Bank of England said he was coming here only to discuss defaulted German and South American bonds with New York bankers and representatives of holders—likewise lent impetus to a general belief there has been a renewal of efforts for currency stabilization.

Await Toxicologist's Report on Baby's Death

Waukesha —(AP)— Coroner Martin Fromm awaited today a state toxicologist's report to determine whether Bernard George O'Neil, 16 months, died from eating discarded cigaret stubs

The child's parents told the coroner that on previous occasions they had found in the boy's mouth cigaret stubs taken from ash trays.

Fromm said he had no definite evidence the child had eaten cigarets recently and would withhold his verdict until receiving a report on tests of the boy's stomach by Dr. W. F. Lorenz, Madison.

4 Rescued After Being Snowbound 7 Days in Nevada

Las Vegas, Nev.—(AP)—Four persons nursed frost-bitten feet today, aftermath of a 7-day vigil in a blizzard-trapped motor car from which one of their party ventured to his death.

Mr. and Mrs. James Poe, Mrs. Lee Prettyman and a Negro cook, Dorin Dunn, suffered from shock and exposure. A rescue caravan brought them here from the Kelly mine, 125 miles north of here, after a two day battle through drifts so deep that at times the automobiles had to be dragged across mountain slopes by tractor.

They also brought back the body of Fred Miller, 45, who froze to death going for aid. The five left the Nevada-Maryland mine to drive here. Their car stalled in snow. Miller set out for the mine 20 miles away—and never returned.

Poe followed, spent the night in a cave, and the next day staggered on the verge of collapse into the Kelly mine office.

A truck from the mine reached the three women. They had existed 7 days on a loaf of bread, three cans of corned beef and snow. Miller's body was found in a drift.

Nine Face Trial on Mail Fraud Charges in Alleged Fake Eye Doctors Swindle

EX-SENATOR DIES

Cheyenne, Wyo.—(AP)—A heart attack, suffered last night while visiting in the city where he was born, was fatal for Robert D. Carey, 58, former United States senator and one-time governor of Wyoming.

Carey, operator of a 70,000-acre ranch in central Wyoming and an authority on western agriculture, was the first "native son" ever to represent his state in congress.

A Republican, he went to the senate in 1930 to serve out the unexpired term of the late Francis E. Warren, and that same year was elected for a six-year term. He was defeated for reelection last November by Harry H. Schwartz, Democrat.

Milwaukee—(AP)—A sweeping federal offensive against an alleged nationwide ring of fake eye doctors reached a climax today with the calling to trial of nine men on mail fraud charges.

Postal inspectors who rounded up the defendants said the swindling of gullible farmers and widows suffering from genuine or imaginary eye troubles had yielded an average of $1,000,000 annually the last 20 years.

Of the 10 indicted by a federal grand jury here last November, only one, Ernest Mandell, of New Orleans, has not been apprehended.

The others are Matthew O. Wilkinson, 47, Norfolk, Va, Hyman Schwartzman, 58, Washington, D. C.; Lawrence B. Holtcamp, 55, Hot Springs, Ark.; Jerry Theeman, 50, Philadelphia; Lewis Levy, 40, Des Moines, Iowa, Sam Birnstein, 45, New Orleans; John M. Gray, 46, Houston, Texas; Frank Mackett, Jr., 49, and William R. Hanecy, 35, both of Milwaukee.

Throughout the United States 27 men have been indicted within the last two years. Seven have been sent to penitentiaries for long terms. One killed himself in jail while awaiting trial.

Mailed Checks Basis

While some of the 10 involved here never have been in Milwaukee, they were indicted here because, the government charges, they mailed checks obtained from victims to Mackett and Hanecy for cashing.

L Hugo Keller, assistant United States district attorney in charge of prosecution, said witnesses would appear from several states, including Ohio, South Carolina, Arkansas, Virginia, Texas and Louisiana.

Postal inspectors ready to take the stand were headed by W. D Kahn, Norfolk, Va, who spent several years and traveled widely obtaining information in this and other fraud cases. Keller and Kahn explained operations of the ring thus:

A member would obtain names of likely victims from unlicensed traveling opticians who sell glasses He would visit these persons and explain he had been sent by the manufacturer of the glasses to determine whether they had been fitted properly.

Then he would call in another member of the ring and introduce him as a famous eye specialist, who would propose treatment with "radium water" at $100 a drop

"Cure" Always Failed

Several weeks later a third man would visit the victim and say the specialist had lied, but just before death had made him promise to make sure the cure was a success or return the $100. The cure never was a success and the new visitor would

Escaped Convict Captured After Fight at Kenosha

Policeman Nabs Man After He Fails to Heed Traffic Signal

Kenosha—(AP)—Captured by a policeman who defied threats to kill, a man who police said was an escaped life term convict was held here today.

Policeman Thomas King, who captured the man after stopping him for ignoring a traffic signal, said the prisoner admitted he was Thomas Laune of Lawndale, Ill., alias James O'Connor, 30.

O'Connor escaped from the Joliet, Ill., prison to which he had been sentenced for life as the result of a holdup. King said Joliet authorities had been seeking him since Nov. 7, 1936 He previously had escaped from the same prison May 23, 1932.

The policeman and another officer forced the man's speeding car to the curb early yesterday and King climbed into the coupe, instructing the speeder to drive to the jail.

King said that when the man drew a pistol and threatened to "drill you into a sieve" he began a struggle and attracted the attention of the other policeman in a squad car ahead. The other officer returned and helped subdue the captive.

Authorities said the coupe was stolen in Chicago Jan 8 and the license plates were stolen from a Kenosha man They said O'Connor told them he had come here Saturday night in a larger car in company with two highwaymen who had a machine gun.

10 Fishermen are Adrift on Floe

Rescue Parties Set Out in Skiffs; Group in No Immediate Danger

Menominee, Mich.—(AP)—Commercial fishermen of Menominee and Marinette today took out skiffs on Green bay ice to rescue 10 caught this morning when the wind broke up the ice field. The fishermen were trapped on the ice with five trucks and $6,000 worth of nets which they were setting through the ice.

The crack opened to a width of a quarter mile this morning. No immediate fear was felt for the lives of the men on the ice because of the thickness of the floe they are riding. It is feared that the trucks and nets will be lost.

Walter and Fred Beyer of Marinette cut off a piece of ice from the floe and made their way back to shore on it to report the plight of their fellow fishermen.

Over 100 Die in Chinese Tragedy

Bodies Hunted Along 15 Miles of Rail Track After Coaches Burn

Canton, Ohio —(AP)—Rescue workers searched along 15 miles of track today for the burned bodies of panic-stricken Chinese, who hurled themselves from the blazing coaches of a speeding express train.

At least 100 persons, it was estimated, perished in the third class cars of the Canton-Hong Kong express yesterday, as the engineer unaware of the fire, kept the train speeding through the night Some 85 bodies, burned beyond recognition, were recovered. About 50 persons were injured.

Railway officials said the fire followed explosion of a jar of sulfuric acid in a third class car jammed with passengers.

Panic gripped the trapped occupants as they tried to fight their way forward. Many were trampled to death in the struggle, authorities said, while others apparently died in leaping from the train.

The three coaches were burned down to their steel bases before the express was halted by the engineer who saw the flaming cars as the train rounded a curve Charred bodies were sprawled over the frames while the right-of-way for 15 miles near Shekiung was scattered with the bodies of other victims.

Kidnap Search Switched Into Southern Area

'Break' Believed Near in Hunt for Mattson Boy's Abductor

FINGERPRINTS CLUE

Federal Agents are Concentrated in Southern California

Los Angeles—(AP)—The long expected "break" was believed near today in the search for the swarthy kidnaper and killer of 10-year-old Charles Mattson as federal agents concentrated suddenly in southern California.

A dramatic swing in the manhunt to this region from the scene of the crime in Washington 1,200 miles north was interpreted as a portent of impending developments

Adding emphasis was the report from an authoritative source that Harold Nathan, federal agent in charge of the search at Tacoma, has sped here by airplane and taken personal charge of swiftly mobilized forces.

The same source stated that fingerprints had identified the man sought as a former convict paroled from prison who was in the Pacific northwest recently, returning to this section several days ago. Identity was reported established by fingerprints at Tacoma, Wash, where the son of Dr Mattson was seized at his home Dec 27 A week ago today the boy's stabbed and bludgeoned body was found in snow-covered brushland near Everett, Wash.

Arrives Secretly

Nathan, a check indicated, arrived yesterday amid great secrecy from Portland, Ore, where he boarded a plane after quietly leaving Tacoma by train A man registered as "H. Nathan" at a Los Angeles hotel declared he had no comment to make.

Two men were held for questioning today in this area

One, Joseph Mitchell, 35, a vagrant, was in the Culver City jail after refusing to answer certain questions asked him by police. He was found carrying a canvas knapsack in which was a boy's sweater and several newspapers detailing the kidnap-slaying.

Another man was reported to have been seized by federal agents and subjected to a lengthy questioning in a jail of a suburban community. He was taken in custody at Compton

John M. Hansen, federal agent in charge here, would neither deny nor affirm the arrival of Nathan nor admit the second suspect had been identified.

Mattson's View

Dr Mattson said in Tacoma he felt certain the kidnaping and slaying was the work of a bungling fiend.

"It is possible that little Charles was sacrificed to further stimulate a previously enraged public to the enactment of more drastic laws both in the prevention of and the punishment of this awful crime," Dr Mattson asserted in a statement Saturday

"If this is true, we feel that Charles shall not have died in vain."

Dr. Mattson prepared today to return to his normal practice of medicine, asserting "my greatest desire is to be left alone."

He, Mrs. Mattson and their two other children, William, 16, and Muriel, 14, were at Paradise valley in Mount Rainier National park over the weekend, recovering from the shock of Charles' death.

Hunt Escaped Prisoners in Ontario Break

Group at Liberty After Firing Buildings and Fighting Guards

DAMAGE IS $200,000

Rioting Starts After 25 Men Complain Against Reformatory Food

Guelph, Ont.— (Canadian Press) —Police combed the countryside today for prisoners who broke from the Ontario reformatory during a riot in which inmates fired the prison and fought their guards for nine hours.

C. F. Neelands, deputy provincial secretary, said a first check-up identified 36 known to be missing An estimated 100 fled before police reinforcements quelled the rioting among the 779 convicts shortly before last midnight.

At least three men were injured and $200,000 damage resulted. The riot broke out suddenly at noon and lasted until a tear gas bomb scattered rioters who were demolishing the prison recreation room long after nightfall Fifteen prisoners were overcome by smoke.

Set Everything Afire

Inmates touched flares to everything that would burn. They ruined the dormitories, the chapel and the hospital from which 12 patients had to be moved to safety.

What furniture was not piled up for kindling was broken into bludgeons with which infuriated bands roved in wrecking forays.

Insurrection flared at noon when 25 men, complaining against the quantity and quality of prison food and against a ban on receiving Christmas packages, refused to eat Dr. J. D. Heaslip, reformatory superintendent, estimated about 35 prisoners actually engaged in the pandemonium which ensued.

Scarcely a pain of glass was left unbroken. Even in the supposedly fire-proof "custodian building" where the rioting broke out, floors and window sills where seared by fire.

Twenty guards of a staff of 74—unarmed as always—were on duty when the yammering of the adamant non-eaters, locked up together, touched off the riots throughout the prison.

Smash Gratings

While some prisoners set fire to mattresses and bedding, wrecking the dormitories where most of them slept, others used a bench for a battering-ram to smash light gratings from windows. After that, escape over the roof of a one-story building and to the ground was easy.

As smoke poured down the corridors and through the shattered windows, the rebellious prisoners won control of almost every section except the central block, protected behind heavy steel grills Many prisoners fled to the spacious grounds and battled hand-to-hand with guards while crowds of citizens watched.

The rioting seemed to reach a climax after about five hours and by midnight groups of prisoners were led peacefully to cells and locked up. Although the guards reinforcements brandished arms, no shots were fired

Crowd of 250,000 Expected at Second Inauguration of President Roosevelt

Washington— (AP)— Inauguration officials, their preparations complete, predicted today a record crowd of 250,000 will cheer President Roosevelt Wednesday at the start of his second administration.

While he worked unconcernedly at his desk, expectations of a historic inaugural address set the already-teeming capital ...le.

Administration leaders hinted there was more than met the eye in selection of "The Hermitage," Andrew Jackson's Tennessee home, as a model for the reviewing stand in front of the White House.

Some believed the president would call his reelection majority in effect a victory for principles transcending party lines, much as did "Old Hickory" when diverse elements in 1829 were brought together in the present Democratic party.

"The program will be one of "Jacksonian simplicity," said Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the inaugural committee. "Our plans for a parade are a compromise.

"At first there was talk of having none at all But we had requests from all over the country for places in a parade that would have lasted until after midnight.

"The president consented to a military parade. Units of the civilian conservation corps and the youth administration are being included."

With downtown Washington dressed up in flags and bunting and every hotel booked to capacity, the city looked prayerfully to the weather bureau for assurances of a good day.

The forecast was for light rain today and tomorrow, probably ending in time to increase the crowds from nearby points.

Admiral Grayson said most of the visitors would be "just folks," although 3 governors are expected. Special trains have been scheduled from as far away as Texas.

Madrid—(AP)—Spanish fascists began the seventh month of their attempt to overthrow the socialist government today with renewed bombardment of the capital

Half-a-dozen shells burst in Madrid's central plazas, damaging commercial buildings although no casualties were reported.

The fresh artillery assault began as foggy weather was replaced by bright sunshine.

In the Clinico hospital in northwestern University City, a large force of fascists was threatened with annihilation after being isolated on an upper floor of the war-scarred building

The besiegers of the capital, themselves besieged after a three-day socialist onslaught in the northwestern section of Madrid, kept up a desperate rifle and machine gun fire.

Maintain Positions

The Madrid forces maintained their new positions, however, and a detachment pushed the defense lines ahead to the north side of the mine-wrecked hospital.

The dynamite was set off yesterday after lengthy preparations by the government militiamen who tried to storm all the scattered hospital buildings at once

For more than nine hours, guerilla fighting spread through the ruined halls as the insurgents

Menasha School Project Halts as Laborers Strike

18 Workmen Leave Jobs; Demand 5-Cent Per Hour Wage Increase

Menasha—Construction of a $575,000 high school building at Menasha halted abruptly this morning when 18 common laborers employed on the project went on strike for a 5 cent per hour increase in wages.

Maurice Schumacher, Minneapolis, general contractor, was not in the city but a representative on the job indicated that no immediate settlement was in sight, that any action by the contracting firm would have to be taken at the Minneapolis office, entailing two or three days, and that if the increase in wages were granted it would add about 15 per cent to the estimate of labor costs on which the contract price was based

Robert McFarland, Milwaukee, state organizer for the common labor union, was in Menasha this morning.

All work on the school building stopped when the common laborers left their jobs Excavation for the structure has been completed and pouring of concrete for the abutements and foundation walls was started late last week.

The Indianan said he had discussed generally the question of the court with the president, but was not at liberty to disclose details.

He said he himself would favor a bill requiring at least seven of the nine members of the court to concur before an act of congress could be held invalid.

"That is one way we can obtain legislation we have been seeking," Minton remarked.

"Everything we have been fighting to get around today was the result of five-to-four or six-to-three decisions."

Conferees Leave After 5-Minute Meeting This Morning

NO PEACE IN SIGHT

Michigan Governor Talks With Leaders Of Both Sides

Detroit—(AP)—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, announced today after a brief meeting with high General Motors officials that "the conference is off."

Martin made his statement as he and five associates left the conference room in the General Motors building, where negotiations to end widespread strikers were to have opened at 11 o'clock this forenoon.

The General Motors executives designed as conferees in the negotiations, headed by William S. Knudsen, executive vice president, were in the room only five minutes. Knudsen and his associates, John Thomas Smith, general counsel, and Donaldson Brown, chairman of the finance committee, refused to comment when they emerged from the room.

Martin's terse statement indicated General Motors had refused to open negotiations because strikers continued to occupy two Fisher Body plants in Flint.

The U. A. W. A. president said that "at the present moment all conferences and negotiations are off; there are no further conferences scheduled with General Motors."

No New Meetings

He said he planned no further meetings with Governor Frank Murphy, whose efforts to bring the union and the corporation into an accord apparently were set at naught by developments over the weekend.

Martin said the union would stand firm in its refusal to order stay-in strikers to leave the General Motors plant at Flint. He added that no attempt would be made to return strikers to three plants which were vacated Saturday in accordance with the truck arranged by the governor.

Despite charges that the strike truce had been violated, the union conferees, Martin, Wyndham Mortimer, first vice president of the union, and John Brophy, director of the committee for industrial organization, arrived at the General Motors building shortly after the scheduled hour for the conference today.

Governor Murphy, postponing his departure for Washington to attend the Roosevelt inauguration ceremonies, talked with both sides by telephone today but remaind in his hotel here.

When the union representatives arrived at General Motors' offices they were escorted to the conference room where C. E. Wilson, general assistant to Knudsen, talked with them for half an hour before the corporation conferees made their brief appearance.

The union suddenly cancelled plans for the men to leave the Fisher Body Plants No. 1 and 2 at Flint, Mich., yesterday, accusing the large automobile - manufacturing corporation of "acts of bad faith which would destroy the purpose of the negotiations."

As one of these "acts" the union cited General Motors' promise to bargain collectively with a committee from the "Flint Alliance," which said it represented a majority of the corporation's employes in that city. The alliance was formed to crystalize anti-strike sentiment and is headed by George E. Boysen, former Flint mayor.

The board of strategy directing the strikes decided that "violation of the agreement by the corporation makes it imperative that the sit-down strikers remain in the plants until the whole controversy is settled"

Promises Made

The corporation had demanded—and received in exchange for promises it made—that the union men would be out of the plants two

Birthday Ball Committee Will Gather Tonight

Discuss Plans to Raise Funds for Infantile Paralysis Fund

Means of raising funds to assist in stamping out infantile paralysis will be discussed by members of the Appleton committee for the fourth nation-wide birthday ball for president Roosevelt at 8 o'clock tonight at the Conway hotel. Andrew Farnell is chairman of the committee which will decide whether to hold a birthday ball or secure funds through other means.

The purpose of the birthday ball for the president is to create, through the direct help of the citizens, funds with which to help victims of infantile paralysis and support research efforts to wipe out the disease itself.

President Roosevelt again has approved the plan that 70 per cent of the proceeds raised by each local committee be kept in the community or be disbursed to local or adjacent orthopedic hospitals or for the treatment of infantile paralysis cripples. The remaining 30 per cent of the proceeds will be turned over to the national committee for delivery to the president, to be presented by him to the Georgia Warm Springs foundation for the continuation of its part in the national fight against the disease.

Jansen Residence Destroyed by Fire

Town of Buchanan Home Burns Early Sunday Night

Fire destroyed the 8-room home of Joseph Jansen, route 3, Kaukauna about 7:45 last night after members of the Kaukauna fire department, hampered by lack of water, fought the blaze for several hours. Most of the furnishings of the home, which was partly covered by insurance, were saved.

Elizabeth and Victor, Jr., children of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Jansen, Sr., discovered the fire while playing in the kitchen. Kaukauna firemen answered the alarm and had the blaze under control when the chemical and water supply of the fire truck became exhausted.

The firemen were further hampered by the many motorists who were attracted to the scene. Fire Chief Henry Esler said today.

Accuse Unions' Chiefs Of 'Strike-Breaking'

Milwaukee —(AP)— The Wisconsin provisional C. I. O. committee for American Federation of Labor unity charged national officers of the metal and building trades unions yesterday with "virtual strikebreaking."

The committee adopted a resolution condemning actions of the union officers in ordering their members to remain at work during the United Automobile Workers' union dispute with General Motors corporation.

The automobile industry, the resolution stated, has singled out the auto workers union for an attack and the General Motors and J. I. Case disputes were evidence. The committee urged the Auto Workers' council in Wisconsin to speed organization.

In a statement of policy, the committee asserted it had chosen sides neither with the federation nor with John L. Lewis' C. I. O. group but was attempting to serve as mediator between the two.

What's New at the Library

"SHINING SCABBARD", by R. C. Hutchinson, the Book-of-the-Month club selection for January, which is on order and will be received soon at Appleton Public library, is a story laid in the French provincial town of Baulon during the spring and summer of 1914 culminating with the coming of the war. Not a war novel, it is a study of the highly complicated relationships of a group of people, mostly of a family, in which the ties are either of blood or marriage.

The Literary Guild selection for January, "The Street of the Fishing Cat" by Jolan Oldes, which is also the all-nation prize novel, has been ordered by the library also.

The order list includes also three of Maxwell Anderson's new plays, "High Tor," "The Masque of Kings" and "The Wingless Victory."

* * *

Sheila Kaye-Smith's new novel, "Rose Deeprose," is among the new books at the library. "Yang and Yin" by Alice Tisdale Hobart, the author of "River Supreme" and "Oil for the Lamps of China," is also on the new fiction list at the library, as is Josephine Lawrence's 'Sound of Running Feet." On order "Cities of Refuge" by Philip Gibbs.

With nearly everyone in the country choosing the best of this and the most popular of that during the year 1936, it seems appropriate here to announce the books which were in greatest demand and had the longest reserve lists at Appleton Public library last year. Of course it is no surprise to learn that more Appleton people read Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind" than any other book, either fiction or non-fiction, in 1936, the book having had more than 200 reservations at Appleton Public library.

It is interesting to note that the two most popular fiction books at the library in 1936 concerned historical events or periods of our own country. The second most popular book of fiction was "Drums Along the Mohawk" by Walter D. Edmonds, dealing with the American Revolution. "Gone With the Wind" concerns the south in Civil war times. The two non-fiction books which were in greatest demand at the library were written by doctors. They are "Man, the Unknown" by Dr. Alexis Carrel, and "An American Doctor's Odyssey" by Dr. Victor George Heiser.

* * *

"Live Alone and Like It" by Marjorie Hillis and "Wake Up and Live" by Dorothea Brand were two non-fiction works which rate top billing in popularity for 1936. Other books which must be included among the most popular at the local library are "The Way of a Transgressor" by Negley Farson, "The Last Puritan" by George Santayana; 'Life With Father" by Clarence Day, "Sparkinbroke" by Charles Morgan, "Inside Europe" by John Gunther, and "Around the World in Eleven Years" by Patience, Richard and John Abbe. "Anthony Adverse" had another burst of popularity last year after the movie version appeared in Appleton.

Beveridge Plans Story About Camp

Guard Veteran Writing Article About 1885 Encampment Here

Lieutenant Colonel Byron Beveridge, Madison, the oldest officer in the Wisconsin National Guard in point of service, went through the 1885 files of the Appleton Post yesterday to obtain information for an article to be published in the Wisconsin National Guard Review, of which he is editor.

The article will be about the first military camp the colonel ever saw, the camp of the 2nd Wisconsin Infantry which was held on the present site of the Riverview golf course. In those days guard camps were held in various cities in the state.

Colonel Beveridge was a boy of 9 years at that time and later served in two wars with some of the men who took part in the encampment. Captain N. E. Morgan, Appleton, who commanded a company in the 1885 encampment, was a major in the Spanish-American war and Beveridge a corporal. Major Charles A. Green, Appleton, was a first sergeant, 20 years old, at the encampment, became adjutant of 2nd Infantry during the Spanish-American war and served in the same brigade during the World war in which Beveridge was an officer.

Report Roosevelt Has Been Asked to Take U. W. Presidency

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—Just one leak has come out of that Roosevelt-LaFollette luncheon on Jan. 10.

A fellow-guest, more in joke than in earnest, said to Governor Philip F. LaFollette:

"I see by the papers you have a vacancy in the presidency of the University of Wisconsin. I'd like to apply for the job."

"Sorry," Governor LaFollette is reported to have replied. "I can't give you any encouragement. I came down to offer the job to President Roosevelt. I simply won't accept anybody else."

It was suggested by those who heard the story that perhaps that was why President Roosevelt had at first ordered his secretary to write a rejection to the formal invitation sent to him to attend inauguration on Jan. 20. Maybe, they said, he thought he would be busy getting started as the successor of Glenn Frank—just as one time a few people have thought that Glenn Frank, just possibly might be busy around this time getting ready to be the successor to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Both Governor LaFollette and Senator Robert M. LaFollette, who also attended the luncheon, have remained silent about any discussions that took place at the White House. Senator LaFollette sticks stubbornly to his story that it was purely a social affair."

Finnish People are United On Payment of Debt to U. S.

(Editor's note: Finland alone pays her war debts. Why? Associated Press foreign writers asked the Finns. The following story, first of a series of three, tells the answers.)

Helsingfors—(AP)—"Why do we pay our war debt to America?"

A Finnish office worker, blissful in his enjoyment of the famous "Sauna" or hot-steam bath of Finland, lifted himself gingerly off his hot wooden shelf, barely visible through the swirling clouds of steam.

"We pay"—he wiped rivulets of perspiration off his face with his forearm—"because we can afford to pay the amount involved. We pay because we owe the money. We pay because it doesn't hurt us to have the good will of the United States in return."

The question was that of Finland's continued payment of her war debt; why this country should do what others do not; why, with an example of non-payment on every hand, Finland should be so resolutely different.

"But don't forget," prompted a young doctor, "that the debt was incurred for food supplies at a time when Finland was practically starving. It's an honorable debt; one you don't forget."

Public Opinion

"Small matter," grunted the office worker. "Debts ought to be paid."

This is what is remarkable about modern Finland. It isn't necessary to walk into the private office of the finance minister to get the declaration that debts should be paid when due. The same firm opinion can be obtained from any Finn of any standing whatsoever in his community. It's a national opinion, giving due credit, of course, to individuals who may stray from the appointed path.

Not every Finn in this country of three and one-half million people can discourse volubly and with understanding on the fine implications of national attitude. Broad principles of policy suffice. What can be obtained, wherever people gather, is clear recognition that Finland is going places and doing things; that the depression has been mastered; that there is no problem of unemployment; that the national debt has been reduced to an amazing degree; that Finland is going to be Finland, come what may.

Finland's leaders are well aware, too, that they have, by payment of semi-annual debt installments coming to approximately $235,000, gained more good will and more publicity than could be purchased by any country for a hundred times that amount. But basically, the motive is that of honesty of purpose and the satisfaction of an "honorable" debt.

Proof that the war debt is no particular exception is found in the fact that Finland's net foreign indebtedness has been reduced since 1930, from approximately 8,000,000,000 to 3,600,000,000 gold marks, the reduction in 1935 being about 950,000,000 marks (about $20,000,000).

There has been good reason for this reduction: the necessity and advisability of permitting easier credits as a basis for economic recovery.

It has meant that only a limited amount of national income could be devoted to improving the standard of living. It has meant national sacrifice in order to get a clean slate. It has been made possible by a stubborn national pride on that for higher wages, and other interi eliminated labor disputes, demands part of the Finns; a pride which has eliminated labor disputes, demands for higher wages and other eternal controversy which might hinder progress.

"It is true," declares a government official, "that we could have spent, on improving the standard of living, much of the money we have paid out in cutting down our foreign indebtedness. We look forward to a day when such indebtedness will no longer be a concern. In the meantime the Finnish people are as determined to be free of debt as they were to be free as a people."

(Next—Finland's unemployed total: just 206!)

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Some one with leisure and a liking for curious information might write an interesting book on political nicknames. They usually outlive the men and the parties to which they were originally given, like the words Tory and Whig. Often they come to mean the very opposite of what they once meant Patriot, for example, was once an epithet applied to what was regarded as the subversive party, and less than a hundred years ago the upper classes in Europe regarded nationalists as conspirators against law and order and the vested rights of hereditary rulers. The French seem to have a peculiar genius for adopting misleading names. Parties that have a mild bite like names which have a loud bark Thus a Republican of the Left is likely to be in fact a Republican of the Right, a Radical Socialist is neither radical nor socialist, a Socialist is likely to be what we should call a moderate progressive

Good Nickname Needed by Political Parties

It is clear that a good nickname is necessary to the existence of a party. In order to stand together men have to have a common name. This is so necessary that, rather than have no name at all, a party will often adopt one thrown at it by its enemies Now in this country the old party names are still useful at election time, but in the ordinary business of politics they are insufficient to identify the factions which really exist When Mr Borah and Mr John Hamilton are both called Republicans, some other name is needed to distinguish them

And therefore it is becoming fashionable to use the labels that are current in continental Europe and to speak of the Right and the Left. These terms come from European legislative assemblies in which the representatives sit in a semi-circle facing the presiding officer; the most aggressive upholders of caste privilege and of property rights, usually large feudal property in land, sit on his extreme right, and the most aggressive opponents of property rights sit on his extreme left The deputies in between are supposed to be seated in the order of their sympathies with the one extreme or the other.

But a Third Name Would Be Needed Here

Now Right and Left are convenient political names, but if they are to come into common use in this country, there is a third name which must not be forgotten It is the Center. The word is not in use because, unfortunately, there has not been much of a Center in Europe during the recent years when these terms were being adopted by American newspapers But Center is the name of as definite a political attitude as Right or Left, and in all healthy countries it covers by far the largest group. In Great Britain, in France, and in this country above all, the Center is the predominant group It would easily include, for example, not only Mr. Roosevelt and Mr Landon, but Mr LaFollette, Mr. Norris, Mr Mills, Mr. Hoover and Mr. Norman Thomas. But it would not have included Huey Long, nor, I think, Mr. Hearst

The Center covers a very wide range of political ideals, programs and interests There may be many Center parties But what distinguishes a man of the Center from a man either of the Left or of the Right is his determination and his willingness to settle all ordinary issues by persuasion, negotiation and compromise To the extreme partisans of the Right or of the Left he always seems like a man who makes a point of not letting people become sharply aligned on irreconcilable issues So they say he has no fighting principles But this is not true He has a fighting principle The principle he is willing to fight for is that issues shall be settled by persuasion For he holds that in political life the end does not justify the means To the man of the Center it is infinitely more important that the habit of reason, tolerance and good will should be maintained over violence, fanaticism, and arbitrariness than this or that particular thing should be done at once.

Men of Center Regard This Principle as Paramount

This principle, which men of the Center regard as paramount, rests on the conviction that political progress is the story of the gradual suppression of lawless and arbitrary violence in human affairs, of the laborious development of the habit of courtesy and good faith in the transactions of men. Thus to the man of the Center the partisans to the extreme right and left look very much alike, both being from his point of view profoundly reactionary. For they do not have that indispensable courtesy by which, through imputing good faith to others, good faith is bred. Yet without good faith given and received, a community cannot be at peace. The man of the Center regards them as reactionary, however much they may imagine themselves to be the heralds of the future, because the further he goes to the right or to the left the more he encounters a disposition to be violent and lawless and irrational. Looking not at their promises but at their behavior, he concludes that these aggressive movements of the Right and of the Left are evidences of a reversion to the primitive, that their common characteristic is that they try to make a virtue out of a tendency to decivilize mankind For the habit of looking for a fight with one's opponents instead of seeking to conciliate the issues is not civilized.

Definite Symptoms Betray Tendency to Degenerate

There are certain definite symptoms which invariably betray this tendency to degenerate to a more barbarous level of social behavior The commonest symptom is a preference for explaining the course of events as a conspiracy. This is an almost infallible sign of a disposition to join either the extreme Right or the extreme Left There are conspiracies in human affairs, of course, but the great tides of history are not raised by conspiracies, and any man who is disposed to look at anything he dislikes as the product of a conspiracy may properly be regarded as illiterate, and then suspected of not being quite sane He may not be a medical case But at least he has regressed so far toward the primitive that he needs to be watched

Charges of conspiracy are the stock in trade of the extreme Right and Left, and that in itself makes it roughly accurate to speak of these extremists as the lunatic fringe. When they are only a fringe surrounding a large predominant mass of centrally minded persons, a society is well off But a society is very badly off—Russia, for example, in 1917, Germany in 1933, Spain in 1936—when the Center is destroyed and there is only Right and Left

They Look on Opponents as Conspirators to be Eliminated?

For the Right and Left, having neither understanding of, nor faith in, the process of reasonable conduct, look upon all opponents as conspirators who can in the last analysis be dealt with only by exterminating them. They look upon their own principles as so absolute that they may resort to any method to apply them The Center, on the other hand, is the heir of the tradition of civilized living and it possesses what little wisdom men have acquired in the course of their cruel history. So the men of the Center know that no one knows enough to rule others violently, that no projects are good enough to justify the sacrifice of the habit of persuasion

It is by the Center that quarrels are composed that the violence is averted, that the processes are maintained by which men live and let live It is by the Center that society is maintained as a going concern And therefore, whenever men forget the Center, when they forget that in all great epochs and in all successful societies, the Center is the master of politics, when they talk as if there were only a Right and a Left, something is radically wrong and there is an ominous reaction in human affairs

See Good Chance For Favorable Seaway Action

Badger Progressives are Pleased With Present Outlook

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington — Wisconsin Progressives who have long been active in pressing for the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway declare that the outlook for action is better now than ever before.

Representatives of 23 states in the house of representatives have already met and are laying plans for supporting the Senate group which hopes for ratification of the treaty with Canada in this congress.

Representative Culkin of New York has been appointed chairman of the House "steering committee" on the seaway; Representative Dondero of Michigan was elected secretary, and Representative Merlin Hull of Black River Falls has been named chairman of the executive board

Appointment of other members to the executive board will be made soon by the chairman, Hull said, and when that is done the board will call a meeting of the house members.

Hull said that a number of senators who opposed ratification before are not now in Congress and that some who formerly opposed have now pledged their support

The President, Hull said, has given his assurance that the matter will be pressed in this session and that it is expected that negotiations with Canada will be completed soon so that ratification can get underway

Tax Collection Tops Last Year's

Kimberly Treasurer Sees Big Reduction in Number of Delinquents

Special to Post-Crescent

Kimberly — Harry Van Himbergen, village treasurer, announced Saturday that he has collected over $3,500 in personal and real estate taxes since Jan 5 when tax collecting time started This is a considerable gain over the same period of last year He added that if the tax money would continue at this rate very few taxpayers would need an extention after the deadline Feb 28, should the state legislature extend the period.

Pointing to the dog tax which must be in by the first of next month, Mr Van Himbergen said that less than 10 per cent of the pet owners have paid their taxes during the last two weeks

At the local council meeting of the Kimberly-Clark Corporation last week at the clubhouse a discussion arose in regard to the social security account numbers Harold Fird of the elected group stated that some of the employes have expressed a desire to have the date and deduction appear on the stub of the check

Mr Ehlke of the management explained that putting the date on the stub of the check would require extra work in the office It certain intervals during the year the employes will be advised as to the amount of deductions made, and this information is recorded at the office and available at all times

Mr Coenen informed the group that the present safety contest would end Jan 21 and another contest will be started soon thereafter because some of the teams were eliminated early in the contest and were out of competition for some time He described the contest being sponsored by another company which he thought was good It was a special award plan which recognized individual records He remarked that the departmental safety meeting was still a valuable means of keeping safety before the men

Badger Solons Have Trouble Getting Enough Tickets for Inaugural Jan. 20

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—Inauguration day, Jan 20, may be a gala day for thousands of persons, but it is giving Wisconsin senators and representatives more trouble than they like to talk about.

For weeks now, congressional offices have been besieged with telephone calls, telegrams, mail, and personal visitors asking that their congressional representatives obtain tickets for the inauguration ceremony to take place in front of the capitol.

Probably the burden is heaviest on the shoulders of Senator F Ryan Duffy of Fond du Lac, and other Democratic representatives from Wisconsin Several Progressive representatives have received no requests from the Badger state, only from Badgers in Washington

Sad because, like other senators, he had but 10 tickets to the inaugural stands, and they were parceled out long ago, Senator Duffy said:

Didn't Have Them

"I have at least one hundred people coming down from Wisconsin all of them have asked for at least one of these tickets Many of the Democratic leaders in our state have written me personally. Where men are bringing their wives, I have had to be more or less ruthless by denying the latter tickets simply because I did not have them

"There is a waiting list of at least 50 more for whom I am still trying desperately to obtain tickets It looks hopeless, but I am still trying"

In desperation the Fond du Lac senator said that this emphasizes that "the scarcity of hen's teeth cannot be compared with the paucity of inaugural tickets"

Early comers (and they will probably begin to gather soon after daybreak) will be able to obtain highly-valued standing ground at the Capital Plaza to look on from a distance

They Can Hear

Favor Move to Increase Number Of Supervisors

Manitowoc Officials Seek Plan to Get More Representation

The move started by a group of local citizens to increase the city's representation on the county board is favored by Manitowoc officials who also are considering means to increase the number of their supervisors on the county board, according to word received by the Appleton Chamber of Commerce from Mead F Hansen, secretary of the merchants and Manufacturers association, Manitowoc

It was suggested by Hansen that each city, village and town have one representative on the board with additional ones based strictly upon population and elected at large

Proposed steps to change the state law to permit Appleton to have more supervisors have been referred to Assemblyman Mark Catlin, Jr.

Hansen pointed out that Manitowoc has seven of thirty-six county supervisors while the city pays about 42 per cent of the county taxes.

The Ohio legislature in 1912 enacted a law which made bringing into the state a deck of cards an offense punishable by a fine of from $5 to $25.

The Appleton representative said he introduced the measure at the request of the mayor and city council of Manitowoc, who in a resolution pointed out that Manitowoc has the only harbor north of Milwaukee which remains open all winter; that car-ferries use the harbor every day despite the weather; and that thousands use the harbor for miles around for swimming and boating.

County Seeking Prices on Police Radio Equipment

Purchase of Receiving Apparatus Authorized by Executive Committee

Authority to take bids on police radio receiving equipment for highway police and the sheriff's department was given to the county police radio committee at a meeting of the executive committee at the courthouse Saturday.

The special committee now has authority to buy a receiving set for each of the four highway police and for the sheriff, undersheriff and sheriff's office, provided that the total cost of the equipment does not exceed $500.

F. R. Appleton, county highway commissioner, indicated today that an additional receiving set will be purchased by the highway department for use by John Ritger, patrol superintendent. Ritger generally is on the road during snow plowing operations, and with radio equipment will be reached immediately when plows are needed for emergency operations.

A resolution to the Indian bureau at Washington, D. C., will be drawn by Raymond P. Dohr, district attorney, requesting that the proposed government purchase of land for Indians in the town of Oneida be delayed until a hearing can be held, the committee decided. Oneida town officials and white residents are opposing the proposed purchase of choice farm land for Indian use on the ground that it will reduce the town's tax income. Support of the executive committee was asked by Supervisor P. M. Garvey at Saturday's session.

An appropriation of $50 for a WPA project under which all World war veterans in the county will be registered was voted by the committee. Leo Solinger, county supervisor for the WPA appeared before the committee.

Acquisition of tax deeds by the county park commission was discussed and the district attorney, George Hanagan of the park board, and E. R. Barndard, county abstractor, were ordered to take steps toward obtaining such deeds.

Fears Revived in Flood Areas as Result of Rains

Crews Bolstering Walls in Missouri and Arkansas Districts

Chicago—(AP)— Turbulent rivers overburdened by winter rains cut deeply into levees today to revive fears of widespread floods in parts of the middle west.

Hundreds of man patched weakened sea walls in Missouri and Arkansas where flood conditions were acute. Many streams which broke their banks and inundated thousands of acres in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois last week renewed a climb toward flood stages

Charles L. Blanton, WPA supervisor, termed conditions in southeastern Missouri critical. Fresh "shock troops" joined an army of 1,500 workers, most of them WPA employes, in an effort to stem the raging St. Francis river's assault on levees.

Blanton reported levees near Holcomb, Kennett and Senath, Mo., were in bad condition. Waters rose to within six inches of the 1935 high water mark and exceeded that of 1927. Relief agencies sheltered more than 250 families evicted from their homes by flood waters in Stoddard, Butler and Dunklin counties.

Many Roads Closed

Light rains brought a rise in streams throughout Indiana but flood crests moved south toward the Ohio river. High water kept many state roads closed.

W. C. Devereaux, Cincinnati meteorologist and flood expert, predicted residents along the Ohio river would not be menaced further unless rains were heavy.

The Wabash river rose 7.8 feet above flood stage at Mt. Carmel, Ill., forcing 100 families to evacuate their lowland homes. The waters of the Kaskaskia river spread over half of Fayette county, flooding much farm land.

Most of the northwest was visited with frigid temperatures and snow. A cold wave sent temperatures below freezing in the California citrus belt. Spokane entered its twenty-second consecutive day of freezing temperatures and more snow was in store. Temperatures hovered near the zero mark in Montana, Minnesota, North Dakota and Nebraska. It was 6 below zero in Duluth last night.

Burglars Enter Freedom Garage

Sheriff Probes Theft of Merchandise Valued At $200

Merchandise valued at about $200 was stolen in a burglary of the Freedom Motorcar company garage at Freedom last night, according to a report to the Outagamie county sheriff's department. Sheriff John Lappen was investigating this morning.

The thieves apparently entered the building by forcing a front door. The extent of the loss had not been determined definitely at noon today but the loot included at least 8 or 10 new tires, 8 new batteries and a quantity of other automobile equipment.

The garage is operated by Arnold and Henry Guerts.

Texas' needy aged received $7,638,000, half of which was federal money, in the first six months of 1936 after the state began pension payments.

Haul Snow for Slides On Opechee-st Hill

Construction of ski and toboggan slides on Opechee street hill is progressing under the direction of H. J. Piette, county WPA recreational supervisor. Twelve loads of snow were hauled to the hill for the slides from the business section of the city last week by street department workmen. Snow also was hauled to Jones park for the building of snow partitions so that ski jumpers, sleigh riders and other slide users will have their own areas.

The recreational director urges children to use care in sliding on Pierce avenue, North and Leminwah street hills until they can be blocked to traffic. Autoists are asked by the director to use Green Bay street instead of North street hill to make sledding safe for children on the latter.

Says Predictions Of European War Are Exaggerated

Col. Frank J. Schneller Speaks at Lawrence College Convocation

No European war will occur for the next 10 years, Colonel Frank J. Schneller, Neenah, said in a talk at a Lawrence college convocation at the college chapel this morning. War scares and constant predictions of international trouble in Europe are largely the result of exaggerated reports of conditions by American newspaper correspondents, he said.

Speaking of the recent Olympic games in Germany, Col. Schneller said the German people acted as perfect hosts last summer at Berlin and demonstrated by their friendly manner that they wished for peace for the world. He said he saw few signs of international unfriendliness throughout his European trip.

"I was permitted to take a great many pictures in connection with the Olympic games in Germany," he said. "But in France I was requested not to develop a picture until I reached America."

American Olympic stars proved popular with European spectators, he said, and German and American victors in the various events were liberally applauded.

Propose Federal Law Requiring Tests for Drivers

Wisconsin Is One of Eight States Not Requiring Examinations

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington — Wisconsin will have to put new punch into its automobile drivers' requirements if pending legislation should become law.

With nine other states, the Badger state is listed as not having provision for examination of applicants in accordance with the law proposed by Senator Truman of Missouri.

Truman's bill would confine to state borders some eight million vehicles in 21 states which do not require a test of applicants' ability to drive.

In addition to denying the right to move in interstate commerce to drivers in states with "inadequate" license laws, the measure would apply also to states which have adequate license laws but issue permits for longer than 3-year periods.

Eleven states are listed as having no licensing law. They are Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Tennessee, and Wyoming.

Other States

With Wisconsin in not requiring an examination of applicants in accord with the proposed law are Maine, Alabama, Arkansas, Indiana, Minnesota, Montana, Nevada, Texas, and North Dakota.

According to Thomas P. Henry of Detroit, president of the American Automobile Association, motor clubs in nearly every state are pressing for licensing of drivers and strict enforcement of existing laws.

"If Senator Truman's bill is enacted," Mr. Henry declared, "the federal legislation would not only effect motorists in states not requiring a drivers' license or without examination features, but would also make it necessary for Maryland, Kansas, Virginia, Nebraska, and North Carolina to change their laws regarding life of permits."

Truman's proposed legislation is a warning from Congress that states must have adequate drivers' license laws and other sound legislation. Henry said.

Solons to Receive Pleas to Reduce Taxes on Property

Proposals to be Presented At League of Municipalities Dinner

Madison—(AP)— Proposals for reducing general property taxes were ready today for presentation to members of the legislature at a dinner to be given by the League of Wisconsin Municipalities Wednesday.

Frederick N. MacMillan, executive secretary of the league, said details of plans discussed recently with legislators and a committee of the county boards' association would be submitted.

These proposals included limitation of the local units' shares of social security costs to 20 per cent; assumption by the state of a material share of relief expenses; state appropriation of $3,000,000 for high school aids; and return of one-half the increases in revenue from motor vehicles to the units for upkeep of streets

The league announced it would suggest raising substitute revenues through the taxes on incomes and estates and a levy on selected luxuries

Both the assembly and senate were in recess today. A skeleton organization of the assembly will meet tonight and adjourn until tomorrow. The senate will convene tomorrow night.

Speaker Paul R. Alfonsi of the assembly said Progressives would control all the committees he will name tomorrow. Similar control in the senate and a report from the legislative reference library, the "bill factory," that fewer bills were in the making gave rise to predictions of a shorter session. The last session set a new record for length, 262 days.

It Is Said--

That Appleton and Outagamie county motorists continued to meet hazardous driving conditions with extraordinary caution over the weekend. In spite of heavy traffic Saturday and icy streets and highways, no accidents were reported either to the Appleton police department or the Outagamie county sheriff's department.

That motorists driving between Appleton and Green Bay do not need highway signs to warn them to drive carefully, for the wheel marks and impressions in the ditches at short intervals along the road tell the story of many cars which have skidded off the icy concrete and had to be pulled or dug out of the snow.

HEALTH QUERIES ANSWERED

Question: My son, 10 years old has sugar diabetes. My doctor has the case on a strict diet for the last 3 months with no improvement. Will Chiropractic help or cure him? Please answer. S. H.

Answer: The problem of maintaining health or regaining it when once impaired is one that should have the counsel and advice of those who are making it a special study and experienced as health counsellors. The Chiropractor who is daily adjusting people who are sick and observing with a trained mind the cause and effects of disease will be entirely competent in the analysis. However, the J. A. Panneck Chiropractic Clinic is equipped with the latest scientific instruments to determine the cause in the spine, which is nerve pressure. In the fifteen years of practical experience I have handled many and various cases with remarkable results Spinal subluxations do cause sugar diabetes, or ulcers of the stomach, hardening of the arteries, or pneumonia, and all known disease. The correct thing to do is to adjust the subluxation, anything else is temporary. Why should your boy have sugar diabetes? The rest of your family have not, have they? You eat the same food, drink the same water, live under the same environments, do you not? Then the cause must be in the spine producing pressure upon the fibers or the nerves leading to the pancreas depriving the normal function and predisposing the organ to disease. One of the reasons that this Clinic has such high percentage of results in diabetes of both kinds is because we make an accurate spinal analysis to learn what vertebra is responsible for the abnormal function. The practice of Chiropractic is entirely scientific. Your boy's health is important. Don't remain in doubt. Consult us at once.

Taxpayer Needs Friend To Champion His Cause

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Waiving no objection to the fingerprinting of employes, I have to admit that we already have in effect in the land a system of prying intrusion into the affairs of a large class of people which is more officious and certainly no less searching than the plan adopted in the two Miamis this winter for the ostensible purpose of abating crime.

This is carried on under authority of the income and estate taxes which compel the individual to submit to a course of examination the like of which, if applied to the so-called workingman in his humble home, would bring howls of indignation not only from the man himself, but as well from those who suffer out loud to see him wronged. It is a degrading process to require, by order of a chamber of commerce consisting of local merchants and promoters, that a workingman put his fingerprints on a card together with a rogues' gallery picture, before his application for work can even be considered.

Pegler

The case for indignation is better if it is lightly assumed that the victim of this outrage against American freedom is an honest, Godfearing native, always up to date with his lodge dues, and the father of at least two starched and shiny young ones. This is a nice ideal which conceals a multitude of scrubby drifters who can't do good work because they don't know, and would be too careless and lazy for any man's hire except in times of high-pressure.

It also covers up foreign ship-jumpers from countries where an American couldn't hope to get work under any conditions, and assumes that any man or woman who asks for a job is heart and soul the same as those virtuous stone figures depicting labor in the statuary groups which adorn public buildings. Still, the fingerprint and photograph system reduces the best to common footing with the worst, and creates an indecent distinction between people with a little money and people with none.

He is Regarded as an Employer and Is Exempt

In the Miamis, by this plan, the racketeer who starts a gambling house, paying graft to the politicians, and corrupting the life of the town, is regarded as an employer, and is exempt from fingerprinting, while the poor, but, for the sake of argument, honest toiler who asks for a job sweeping out is bound to prove in advance that he is not a thief so far as the record shows.

A foul discrimination this, to be sure, but there is an enormous element of citizens no less respectable and good who long ago learned to submit to frisking as a penalty for hard work, intelligence and a small measure of success. Given sufficient earnings to require a report of income to the federal and, probably also the state government, the victim first sets forth his gross for the year.

He then deducts from the total an amount sufficient to maintain his dependents on a diet of clay and acorns on a sidehill patch in one of the submarginal bad lands, but utterly inadequate to keep them in the merest food and clothing in those sections of the country where a man must live to make such an income. After that, if he makes deductions for the expense of carrying on the business which produces the income, he begins to court investigation.

And a Few More Questions Which He Must Answer

The inquiry will want his stubs and cancelled checks, it will ask him what this $5 went for, and why he didn't walk instead of riding a cab, and what he did with the ten he won on the ballgame and how does he figure that a gift to a starving friend was charity when the law says that the only deductible gifts are those which go to organized concerns spending not less than 40 per cent on stationery, postage, rent, salaries and commission for the collectors?

He will have to bring in his lease, his contracts and his diary to show where he was on any given day, and like as not he will be asked for these documents, not all together, but one at a time over a period of weeks. There will be no allowance for the insurance carried to pay the income tax in cash the year after his death when his earnings have quit; not any rebate at any time for hospital or medical service to keep him fit to pay the tax to provide these services free for those who pay no tax themselves.

Even After His Death the Law is Relentless

When he has died, and his estate is ready for the auctioneers, his widow will be called upon to appraise his shirts, socks and suits, his collar-buttons and old niblick, his share of the family car, his portion of the shingles on the roof, his club memberships, if any. And if he gave her $50 in the last year of his life is she able to prove that this was not done with the knowledge that his number was up, and with intent to defeat the purpose of the law?

And all the time, the public employes will be paying no income tax to the state and hardly any to the federal government. And the governor and mayor and aldermen, and many of the judges and other officeholders will pay no income tax to either, thanks to the foresight of bygone generations of officeholders who gave a kindly thought to their political posterity. He pays taxes to pay them bigger salaries than his own, on which they pay none whatever.

Our subject has private affair left. fingerprints or picture, that is not ifngerprints or picture, that is not an oversight. It merely isn't necessary, because if he wished to flee it would cost him more to sell out than to hold still and give tribute to the law.

The class who pay income and inheritance taxes are the only class in the United States without a friend and without a chance on earth when the man says gimme.

JUSTICE MARTIN ON YOUTHFUL OFFENDERS

The address delivered by Justice Martin before the convention of circuit judges on "the administration of criminal law in Wisconsin" has attracted a great deal of favorable comment judged by the articles appearing throughout the state.

Justice Martin centered his remarks about the reform of the criminal, principally the young or first offender, because, after all, that is the point in the record of outlawry where the most good may be accomplished.

He pointed out that in only 13 of our 71 counties have we provided any trained personnel for the supervision of juveniles. Crime in some people starts with a little bit of deviltry and forms itself into a smart-Aleck habit. Habits are more easily formed when the body is young and the mind plastic. The right sort of training, the proper kind of appeal, during the formative years, gives the best promise of making headway in the improvement of those who have become delinquent.

It is quite all right to provide relatively strong punishments for repeaters. It is necessary to deny pardons and paroles to those whose protestations of reformation are found insincere judged by their own records.

But it will be much more satisfactory to the public, and an improvement to our society, if we make certain that before one has become a habitual criminal, and after the public is warned of his tendency toward delinquency, every reasonable effort shall be made to point out to him the right track and convince him that there is no happiness, just as there is no security, upon the downward trail.

MAKING A MONKEY OUT OF A GOVERNOR

As part of the program to gain clemency from New York's chief executive for the shivering wretches waiting to go to the electric chair 200 people congregated in the snow before the governor's mansion and carried on a service.

They knelt. They clasped their hands in prayerful attitude. Their eyes appealed to heaven for assistance. Some of them daubed eyes with handkerchiefs. They were soiled handkerchiefs because the people were poor. Their lips moved in silent prayer.

Murillo or Titian would have seen the drama in the situation and with their genius preserved it on canvas for centuries. It was too much for the governor. His kindly heart couldn't stand the strain.

But today he is a disillusioned man. The whole thing was a fake. It was a circus. It was put on by actors paid for the purpose. Even the dirty handkerchiefs were soiled on purpose.

For Samuel Berg has commenced action for the immediate payment of $2,000 promised him for the stunt. He also disclosed that it was he who passed out the numerous petitions sent to the governor begging for mercy for the doomed. To a newspaper reporter he admitted that when someone suggested calling in a noted criminal lawyer to aid the cause he said: "Why should we get Darrow? It is me who needs to be on the front page, not Darrow."

The governor is a sadder and wiser man.

The public officials will be reminded in the future that the underworld capitalizes the finest emotions in others, and which it doesn't have in itself, and when it gets a happy reaction concludes that it has worked another sucker and goes back to making nitro-glycerin and mutilating its fingerprints.

THE PEORIA ESTATE GROWS—IN FRANCE

Back in 1896 a woman by the name of Adelaide Cole of Peoria died leaving property valued at $8,000.

Last week Le Matin, a Paris daily, told a front page story about Madame Phillippe, wife of a Paris teacher, who had just filed an action to obtain the estate of Adelaide Cole of Peoria, now worth "30 million dollars."

Either Madame Phillippe is preparing to obtain extensive credit or somebody is starting another Sir Francis Drake Estate. Possibly since the "Spanish Prisoner" must have already been killed in this cruel and ruthless war, the Cole case of Peoria will succeed in stripping the suckers of their useless cash.

Noticeable is the fact that both Spain and England are slipping as lands of mystery, and America is rising on the horizon with all the golden promises.

Let us here at home persist in having our own frauds. They are just as good as alien ones.

THE CHOICE IS BUTTER OR GUNS

Captain Eden may be an aristocrat to his fingertips but he turned out as earthy, homely and meaningful an expression as any man of the soil or poet of the people when he told newspaper men at London that England "prefers butter to guns." The world read the statement as a pointed reference at Germany because the Germans are getting guns instead of butter but we doubt that it was used in so narrow a sense for few countries in Europe are giving their people the butter they want or need.

Guns are in the ascendency. But it is best to remember that those who have one cannot have the other.

Russia just announced that she will finance the largest military appropriation in her history finding the profits for this venture in her food industry. This means still another cut in butter on Ivan's bread, and already the butter alloted to the Russian masses is less than half that Americans customarily use. But Russians, no more than Germans, can have both guns and butter.

Italy, long since abandoned butter for various substitutes. It couldn't have butter and Ethiopia, and Mussolini spent the money for the necessary guns.

But Denmark has butter, plenty of butter, golden butter, and few guns. The Swiss have butter, butter enough for both sides of their bread, but their guns are old and most of them belong in museums. The Dutch have butter, butter galore, but they do not strut and brag about their army and what it can do to somebody else.

Mr. Eden, thrown into the vortex of world's affairs as Britain's foreign secretary, is rated a statesman by position and accomplishment, but in one short phrase he has shown himself a master of language by gathering together simple words with terrific power, words that convey a bookful of meaning. These words are carrying a thought around the world more effectively than cables. Which shall it be, butter or guns?

Guns have the grimy and acrid smell of powder. To those they do not kill they bring tetanus. The butter has the wholesome odor of home. It builds muscle and makes for joy.

Guns bring visions of long hospital corridors lined with white cots, drawn and haggard faces, the incoherent words of delirium, the sickening smell of ether. Butter brings thoughts of clean kitchens, hungry children, gurgling laughter, happy, honest faces.

Down the faces of children guns cause tears to course while on those same faces butter would make a smear that tells its story, a hungry boy, a generous cut of bread loaded down with butter and perhaps a pinch of brown sugar on top.

Gray, the English poet who wrote so well and eternally of the people and their work and ambitions, their hopes and their virtues, their joys and their sorrows, never wrote anything better than Eden with his "butter or guns." For after all, that nation is greatest whose people have the most butter.

And instead of hammer and cycle, swastika and fasces, united fronts and clenched fists, the world needs more of the emblem of the churn.

A CRUSADE IS BEGUN

Whatever one's religious affiliations or beliefs may be, he will watch with interest the progress which is made in the recently-organized "knights' crusade" of the Knights of Columbus, a crusade which is to be directed against "atheistic, iconoclastic and subversive forces."

The Knights plan to direct their campaign from 350 key cities in the United States, the territories, and in Canada. The campaign is to be one of education and will be aimed largely at communism, fascism, birth control, juvenile delinquency and irreligion.

The Catholic church proved itself a potent force in recent years in organizing to demand a "clean up" of the motion picture industry. All the admonitions of the Will H. Hays office were puny as compared with the threat embodied in the Legion of Decency. The motion picture producers have displayed a healthy respect for the Legion and its aims ever since.

The Legion of Decency got results. It is safe to predict that the "knights' crusade" will bring results. The nation will be benefitted by the efforts of a half-million good citizens.

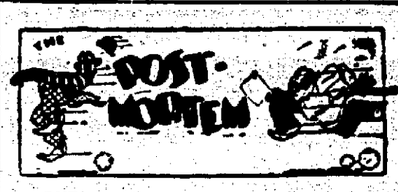
It is an appeal to reason, to the good, the decent and the dependable.

"Madstones"—hard, smooth objects supposedly found only in the stomachs of white deer or white cows—were reputed to cure rabies. Placed on wounds, they were said to draw out the infection.

A Bible in the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Farrar in Waxahachie, Tex., has been in Mrs. Farrar's family for 225 years. It was brought from Scotland in 1774.

Five thousand messages of felicitation containing 300,000 words were received by the Nanking telegraph office on Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's 50th birthday.

Kansas farmers, who harvested only 75 per cent of the wheat acreage planted last year, have seeded 16,500,000 acres—the largest acreage in the history of the state—for 1937.



YOUR correspondent is irked at Prexy Roosevelt . . . yeah, irked . . . it seems that the Prexy pulled a gag about the "ambassador from Maine" the other day and he should know by now that gags of this nature are so old that even Ed Wynn has used them . . .

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

WALKING WITH THE BABY

Walking with the baby
On Sunday afternoon,
Grandpa is so happy
He hums a little tune.
Such a chubby baby
Clinging to his hand.
While the sunlight deepens
On the russet land.

Walking with the baby,
Kicking up the leaves;
Grandpa is a wizard,
So this child believes!
He knows all the secrets
Of the grass and trees.
Baby learns from Grandpa
Nature's mysteries.

Walking with the baby
Grandpa finds the joy
That can be imparted
By a little boy.
Each teaching the other,
Happily they walk,
Making Sunday brighter
With their joyous talk!

HOW ABOUT A LATER MODEL OF THE SAME MAKE?

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

IF I HAD WINTER COUGH

For over a year I have been trying to make up my mind to write you, but I have hesitated as I have always believed you must be a clinic or a name used by the medical organization to get their propaganda over to the laity. But your article about what you would do if you had arthritis was so good that now I would like to know what you would do if you had chronic bronchitis, lived in North Dakota, had a perfectly good doctor, coughed all the time, ran a temperature some of the time—would you go South? Does a person over forty ever get over enlarged bronchial tubes? Have read your column for years, and while I think you are a little sarcastic at times, your teachings are fine... (T. J. K.)

The main trouble with the climate in which so many victims of chronic bronchitis(winter cough) elect to live is that it is too dry. The second fault is that it is too warm. Finally most of the ultraviolet is carefully filterer out of it before the old parties will have anything to do with it, Au naturel the climate is not half bad. In fact if we could club the wiseacres on the head they'd enjoy the best possible health in the north temperate climate, with all its sudden changes from hot to cold, storm to clear, damp to dry. The thoughtless millions in that zone do maintain the highest health standard of the population of the world.

But these misguided valetudinarians with "weak lungs," "sensitive bronchial tubes" or "catarrhal tendency," from Dr. Osler himself down to your Aunt Euphemia, being so blindly obsessed with the notion that cold and damp are injurious, coddle themselves in every way, shutting themselves off from the benefits of fresh air, ultraviolet irradiation (of sunlight), and the vitalizing, invigorating effects of adequate oxygenation, good metabolism.

If I had winter cough (chronic bronchitis) with or without emphysema (constant wheeze, ballooning of portions of the lungs) or bronchiectasis (dilation or ballooning of some of the bronchial tubes) and could conveniently do so, I'd spend every winter in a moderately dry, equable climate where there is a maximum of sunshine, say in Southern California, Arizona, Mexico, Florida, or better live in such a climate the year round. In lieu of that I'd go to considerable trouble and even some initial expense to have my home and my place of business if possible air- conditioned, that is, equipped with efficient apparatus to maintain automatically a comfort zone—temperature of 65 to 68, relative humidity of 50 to 60 per cent—similar to the air of the ideal climate. I say initial expense, for such provisions for humidifying the heated and dried out air effect economies in the fuel consumption through the winter which in a few seasons more than pay for them.

Every morning I'd invoke the aid of gravity—stand on my head, or rest for a while with elbows and hands on floor and lower part of body still in bed, or use one of those trick beds and have Manuelo crank it up at foot for a while. Of course, I'd do a dozen or more somersaults every morning anyway, as every sedentary adult should.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Colitis

Please tell me if you think it makes any difference whether a person with colitis drinks whiskey or highballs. Our doctor says it makes no difference. Mrs. A. M. P.)

Answer—Was your doctor under the influence when he said so? Probably few good doctors would concur in that opinion.

Quinine

What effect would too much quinine have on the blood? I took it once for about three months, 21 grains a day. I am now anemic, have headaches, sometimes my face and arms and legs just seem to go to sleep.—(M. N. W.)

Answer—It is not likely that your present trouble is due to the quinine.

Fruit Juice

Our cooking class studying vitamins. You said orange juice should be served soon after it is squeezed out, for it loses vitamin C on standing over night. Another well-known doctor says orange juice prepared at night and kept in the refrigerator is still rich in vitamin C next morning.—(S. D.)

Answer—Still rich, perhaps, but not so rich as it was when freshly squeezed from the orange.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Helen Broderick, like Dorothy Parker, can utter extremely telling criticisms when the occasion seems to warrant them.

Becoming famished during recent rehearsals of her Twin Star program, this actress wife of Melvyn Douglas ordered lunch from a nearby delicatessen. The appetizers were elegant but when she came to the steak sandwich she beckoned to a page.

"Son," she said, "run across the street and get me an onion sandwich. And while you are there tell the chef I'm having this steak tanned and designed into a wallet for Victor Moore."

Withal their excessive temperamental natures and exacting attitudes, singers seldom insure themselves against laryngitis, or other ailments of the throat. Indeed, they are a most careless tribe. Lauritz Melchoir smokes innumerable big black cigars before an operatic or concert engagement. Elisabeth Rethberg thinks nothing of romping hatless through the snow. Ezio Pinza strides about town with wintry blasts howling through his open coat.

On the other hand, Eugene Ormandy—who conducts from memory—was offered a policy that guanantees his presence of mind during important engagements with the Philadelphia orchestra. The salesman beat a hasty exit upon reading a story that it took Ormandy five years to remember who borrowed his violin.

Which reminds that I arrived at a reception recently just in time to hear Jascha Heifetz say:

"Of course, my Strad and Guarnerius are insured heavily, but I have never had five cents insurance on my fingers."

"You haven't, Jascha?"

"Insurance on my hand would make me self-conscious," he explained. "It bothers an artist to think too much of his technical equipment."

Ferde Grofe, composer of the "Grand Canyon Suite," has planned a startling innovation for his Carnegie Hall concert late in January. A 60-piece orchestra will present a series of hitherto unplayed manuscripts, including his "Ode to Will Rogers," which has never been heard away from the privacy of his home.

But, the highlight of his concert will be a new suite, "Hollywood Ballet," in which Fred Astaire will be represented by trap drum and ocarino, Greta Garbo by bull fiddle, and—but he's keeping the rest of his caricatures a secret. It ought to be fun—if Hollywood can take it.

Your Birthday

"CAPRICORN"

If January 19 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m. from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a. m., from 6:15 to 8:15 p. m. and from 10:15 p. m. until midnight.

On this day do not let any killjoy discourage you. You may have to do some clever maneuvering to carry out some idea you have in mind, but it can be accomplished, with a little perserverance. There is not likely to be any good reason for you to feel dejected, this day. Should you allow yourself to get into that state of mind, change your line of thinking, for there will be no profit in playing the part of Job's comforter around the house or office. There is danger in delivering messages hurriedly, for they are liable not to be understood, so be careful in this respect. Married and engaged couples, as well as those whose ardent devotion to someone has been rewarded by an awakened love, must not quarrel over who was in the right or wrong, regarding any incident that belongs in the past.

If a woman and January 19 is your birthday, you are capable of loving deeply. You should be of an optimistic nature, cheerful and very sympathetic. You ought to have marvelous money-making possibilities. You may be of a more or less intellectual type, with a decidedly artistic streak in your make-up. You, probably, loathe hypocrisy, with the result that at times you err on the side of being overly frank. You ought to have little difficulty in accomplishing whatever you seriously undertake, whether it is social or business ambitions, or the conquest of a heart. As a professional shopper, dancer, singer, writer, business woman or artist your efforts ought to be greatly appreciated and well rewarded. There seems to be no barriers to happiness in your matrimonial life.

The child born on January 19, as it merges from infancy into childhood, must be guided into forming the habit of obedience, for it may be inclined to be rather headstrong. Properly trained, this youngster should have a brilliant future.

If a man and January 19 is your natal day, you perhaps will have to work hard for whatever you get, but in the long run your efforts ought to bear good fruit. As an educator, literary man, inventor, engineer, scientist or salesman you have every chance of finding the road that will lead to wealth.

Successful People Born on January 19:

Isaiah Thomas, journalist and publisher.
Robert E. Lee, Confederate general.
Nathaniel Hayward, inventor.
Edgar Allan Poe, poet.
Thomas R. Pinchon, educator.
William Watson, scientist and engineer.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The administration, and for this purpose that includes congress, must show some time soon just how brave it is.

The test will come not only in cracking down on the big fellows, but upon the little ones. The jobs involved are:

To control the prosperity rise before it explodes into a boom.

To cut down the load of relief and government expense, or increase taxes.

Several measures of courage already have been displayed in dealing with the possible boom. Less political heroism has been indicated so far in cutting down the burden of relief and government expense.

Months ago the banks were ordered to put about $1,300,000,000 more reserves back to deposits. That wasn't meant to make the deposits safer. No fear is felt for them. It was to tie up money that otherwise might have been pumped into the security markets.

* * *

Federal Reserve In Action

Political courage was read into the government's issuing public warnings that there was danger to the stability of American markets from the influx of about seven billions of foreign capital which might be withdrawn precipitately. That was followed up by treasury action "sterilizing" all new and foreign gold receipts so they cannot swell bank reserves so actively.

The federal reserve board also pulled on the reins by increasing marginal requirements; in other words, reducing the amount of cash that could be borrowed on stocks for speculative purposes.

The reserve board still has authority to require another billion or so to be set aside as bank reserves. There is talk of asking congress to give the reserve board and the Securities and Exchange commission still further power to handle the boom.

But now check up the economy talk. President Roosevelt himself discouraged many persons ambitious to cut government costs when he let it be known that his reorganization plans called more for efficiency than economy.

Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, has indicated he wanted even more than the half billion dollars the President had in mind to carry on for the balance of this fiscal year. Yet on the saving side, when he sought recently to cut WPA rolls in New York, he was overridden.

Many Are Pessimistic

In light of many experiences, it is difficult for observers to look to congress to volunteer any real cutting of government costs. The trouble lies in this: One-third of the senators and all house members are up for re-election in less than two years. Their experience is that cutting costs in Washington also cuts votes back home.

Yet if costs are not cut, the government will need courage to retain or increase present tax levels to retire the depression debt. Time-seasoned Senator King of Utah does not conceal his pessimism at the prospect. He doubts that either the administration or congress will really cut costs.

Hollywood News And Gossip

By Robbin Coon

Hollywood — Scarcely had preview echoes of "One in a Million" begun to fade before Hollywood was thoroughly skate-conscious. Sonja Henie may not be entirely responsible, but hers is the first film to feature skating and may take credit for starting a cycle on ice and rollers.

Jack Dunn, whose rink talents have been waiting at Universal for their opportunity, will get started soon, and a contemplated feature of the new Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers picture is a dance on skates. There also is a skating chorus or two spotted in other films, and it is a matter of course that Sonja Henie will make another picture.

Before the preview this seemed a matter rather for conjecture. The blonde Norwegian Olympics champion was not exactly "picture material," you know. One-picture stardom was freely predicted for her. But no! The picture reveals a chubby, dimpled cuteness most fetching aside from the girl's well-known prowess on the ice.

* * *

Excuse for her skating, surrounded by elaborate ice ballets, is provided by a comedy built on the sure-fire formula of "Sing, Baby, Sing." There are Adolphe Menjou, the Ritz brothers, Borrah Minnevitch, Arline Judge, Jean Hersholt, Don Ameche, Dixie Dunbar and several others, most of them slightly mad in behavior. But when Sonja dances on skates, you can forget everything else. She is more graceful than a bird in flight, and less earthbound.

Sterner stuff is this year's companion piece to "The Informer." It is "The Plough and the Stars" from Sean O'Casey's play, directed by the same John Ford who made "The Informer" memorable.

The setting again is the Irish rebellion, in the spring of 1916. There is a love story between Barbara Stanwyck and Preston Foster.

Deriving its title from the flag of the rebellion, the film tells of the uprising against war-harassed Britain, the brief triumph, the losing struggle, the ultimate failure.

Courage, heroism, great deeds mingle in the streets with comic quirks of caution, truculence and petty thievery. The masses are living, laughing, fighting small fights. The idealistic leaders call, and the living and laughing and fighting of small fights go on, however inconvenienced by the bullets and bombs from the big fight. When the shooting is over, Foster is still there as the Irish idealist, and Miss Stanwyck still weeps beside him—for a future of waiting while he fights again.

Strike Boss

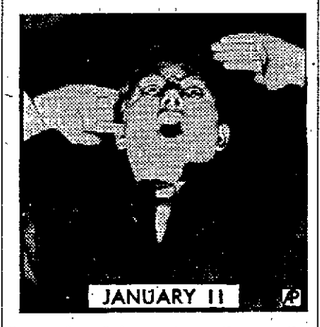
Here's How Homer Martin Warmed Up For Battle

Mild-mannered Homer Martin turned up at South Bend, Ind., to get in his word at conferences over the sit-down of Bendix Products Corp. workers.

Smiling pleasantly, the former hop-step-and-jumper conferred on plans for organizing auto workers with leaders of the Committee for Industrial Organization in Washington.

His pulpit technique came in handy as the ex-Baptist minister laid his union demands on General Motors before United Automobile Workers of America delegates at Flint, Mich.

Jaw set, the union president received reports at his desk in Detroit of the strike's progress and gave little encouragement to would-be conciliators.



Impassioned in oratory, the youthful leader exhorted strikers at a Flint G. M. plant to continue their sit-down despite a split in labor ranks as to its expediency.

The game is a preliminary to the Lake Forest Varsity-North Central College cage tilt.

Towsley, a Kaukauna High graduate, will start at a forward position, where he will be able to use his height to advantage. Before transferring to the Illinois school, Towsley attended Mission House college at Plymouth for a year.

Three Industrial League Games are Planned Tonight

Upsets May Occur in Any Of Trio of Encounters This Evening

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE

	W.	L.	Pct.
Goldin Metals	4	1	.800
Catholic Knights	4	1	.800
Gustman Chevrolet	3	1	.750
Young Men's Club	2	2	.500

Greenwood Chapel	1	3	.250
Kavanaugh Barbers	0	4	.000

GAMES TONIGHT

7:00—Greenwoods versus Kavanaughs.

8:15 — Gustmans versus Pantry Lunch.

9:30 — Catholic Knights versus YMC.

Kaukauna—A trio of basketball games to be played this evening at the high school gymnasium will constitute this week's activity in the City Industrial cage league, and all three contests are capable of awarding the non-partisan basketball fan with the ever-desired upset.

The opening session will see the Kavanaugh Barbers fighting to break into the win column. Strenthened by the recent addition of Zimmerman to the team roster, the haircutters will attempt to clip a few figures off the Greenwood Chapel standings.

When Gustman Chevrolets clash with the Pantry Lunch in the second tilt, an interesting battle is assured. While the motor representatives are perched high on the win-and-loss ladder, the Lunch team is always a threat and may provide serious opposition.

Paced by Roy Derus, Clarence Koch and Donald Dix, the Gustman team has won several non-league games recently. The Lunchmen, with Van Drasek and Miller back in the lineup, and bolstered by the addition of Mayer, diminutive forward, will attempt to gain its second league win.

Perhaps the closest game of the night will result when the Young Men's Club team will go after the scalp of the league leading Catholic Knights. Smarting from the defeat handed them last week by Gustmans, the Young Men, with the Block brothers, Neisz and Wurdinger leading the attack, will extend the Knight five to the limit.

TVA Chairman in Frank Statement On Utility Issues

Would Respect 'Legitimate Private Investments In Business'

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Shall the government of the United States destroy the $12,000,000,000 private power industry, or shall there be cooperation between the government and the private investors so that legitimate investment shall not be impaired?

Lawrence

This simple alternative is now projected into full view and constitutes perhaps the most important single issue to be placed before congress and the country as a fundamental question of national policy.

Until now, it has been vigorously denied by supporters of the Roosevelt administration that there has been any remote thought of injuring legitimate investments. President Roosevelt has publicly given such assurance to the American people, who were asked to believe that only the public utilities which had committed grave abuses would be punished.

But there has been revealed to the nation an amazing appeal by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority. In some respects, it is the frankest statement on power policy that has been made by anybody in the controversy for the last three years. It is objective, fair-minded and challenging. Dr. Morgan's tone is conciliatory and his attitude reflects a sincere desire to bring peace as between the government and the public utilities so that the war, which is costing literally billions of dollars in pent-up demand for expansion and extensions, shall begin soon to give work to the unemployed and business to the suppliers of raw materials used in such great quantities in utility construction.

Public Ownership Bloc

But Dr. Morgan's statement discloses what has been suspected before but never confirmed officially, namely that there exists in the administration a group who want ruthlessly to destroy utility investments and launch the nation on an extensive public ownership program. If the latter group is right, then their logic would some day apply equally to government ownership of facilities that produce or distribute or furnish other necessities of life, ranging from food and clothing to medical care.

The penetrating question of whether the government shall take over functions now performed by private institutions and businesses, or whether there shall be cooperation between government and private interests, with a certain measure of governmental regulation to prevent abuses, is the central point in the controversy now brought to a head by Dr. Morgan's statement. Here is how he phrases it:

"A very important decision is involved in the treatment of the power issue in TVA territory. Shall there be an effort on the part of public officials to work with the private utility companies to remove abuses, to insure maximum service at minimum cost, and to insure opportunity for public ownership where it is desired; or shall men drift into an attitude of a fight to the finish against the private power companies, which might have the nature and perhaps inevitable consequence of disruption of the private systems, the destruction of legitimate investments and of economical service, and the sudden, if unexpected, throwing of great power systems into premature and unprepared for public ownership?"

Wants Fair Play

Dr. Morgan wants fair play and says that "in the process of transition from private to public ownership, there should be respect for legitimate private investments in the utility business."

There's the issue. On the one hand are those headed by Senator Norris of Nebraska and David Lilienthal, general manager and one of the directors of the TVA, who want a finish fight with the utilities, and Dr. Morgan and the public ownership advocates, who want a transition and try-out period.

But both groups inside the Roosevelt administration envisage public ownership of utilities as the ultimate goal and the difference is on how to accomplish the result. One would be a slow process of strangulation, but with a chance to salvage some of the investments at fair value, while the other would mean a ruthless destruction as soon as such a result could be effected by the use of governmental authority and funds.

President Roosevelt is in an awkward position. He can hardly take sides without antagonizing some of his most ardent supporters and friends. Likewise, if he keeps a $12,000,000,000, industry hanging between life and death, he retards recovery and perhaps even starts a deflation.

It is my impression that the president leans toward Dr. Morgan's views or he would not have sanctioned the issuance of a public statement by the chairman of the TVA which outlines so frankly the existence of a controversy inside his own administration. The rumors for several days have been that David Lilienthal would win out.

Could Sidestep Issue

Mr. Roosevelt has a convenient exit if he chooses to use it. He could, of course, place the matter before the congress of the United States and let the people's representatives, who are supposed to be elected for that purpose, decide such questions of fundamental policy. There are many bills pending.

The utilities are not taking sides as between Dr. Morgan and Dr. Lilienthal, for the very good reason that they see little difference between immediate destruction of their businesses and the huge uncertainties that accompany a slow transition period in which the goal is definitely public ownership.

Fortunately, however, the alternatives are not just the two involved in the debate between Dr. Morgan and Mr. Lilienthal. There are really four possible policies:

First, government ownership of the sources of power, both hydro-electric and generating plants, existing properties to be taken over at fair value on appraisal, and the government to confine the utility companies to transmission and distribution, with rates to be fixed by state commissions, state compacts and, where interstate, by the federal power commission. This plan would include a government lending policy by which the government underwrites the risks involved in utility expansion and, in return, exercises a control over rates so that economies of financing present securities are passed on to the consumer.

May Buy Systems

Second, government purchase of existing systems as individual entities and not by using government funds to encourage the subtraction by hit-or-miss method of large cities from present private systems, which would mean disintegration.

Third, destroy all the private systems by using government subsidies for outright competition and then taking over what is left without regard to whether investors lose.

Fourth, finish construction on existing projects and perhaps add more as the country needs them, but assure the utilities of an opportunity to buy power at the dam and leave the transmission and distribution to private companies or municipalities to compete for, either by contract or lease, but with a definite limitation of federal encroachment or invasion. Investors then could buy refunding securities of utilities' or bond issues of municipalities with a full knowledge that, except for rate-making and for supervision of security issuance, there is no competition coming from the all-powerful federal government with its many opportunities for "multiple purpose" dams that hide subsidies and keep investors from risking the money they ought to be lending to utility companies now and in the future.

Dr. Morgan's statement is a statesmanlike approach to a difficult problem of government, and while one may differ with his proposals here and there, the pronouncement in general is in such an excellent spirit of mediation that it could well be adopted by both the president and the utilities as a basis for a common sense settlement of one of the most costly controversies that has ever arisen between the government and its citizens. It probably will not be so taken, but will prove in reality mostly a means of testing public sentiment.

Good Example Is Better Than Arguments, Priest Tells Holy Name Members

"YOU can do more by the influence of a good example than by months of arguing and years of preaching," the Rev. Sylvester Van Berkel, assistant at St. John's Cathedral, Milwaukee, told the Holy Name society of St. Joseph Catholic church Sunday night at its twelfth annual banquet at St. Joseph hall. About 350 persons attended the meeting.

Using as his theme "Live Your Religion," Father Van Berkel declared that one might tell of the martyrdom of saints, the sanctity of Catholic priests and nuns and the sacrifices of parents, but the non-Catholic did not know of these—he judged Catholics by those he associated with in his every-day life.

"If all Catholics lived up to their faith and carried the name of Christ from the church to their homes and work and community, this world would become Catholic in 50 years," he said. "There are about 20,000,000 Catholics in the United States. Until we are not ashamed to be pious, we are not 20,000,000 strong, but 20,000,000 weak. Live so that a non-Catholic can say, 'The church must be wonderful to inspire a life like that.'"

Neenah Understanding

In order to be a living argument for his faith, the Catholic must have an intelligent understanding of his religion and must be proud to profess it, Father Van Berkel continued.

"Know your religion, study it," he advised. "Don t be ashamed to pick up a catechism and don't be ashamed to be caught reading a Catholic magazine or book. Don't hush the fact that you are a Catholic. Be proud of it.

"In conclusion, let us ask ourselves a question. 'Can we honestly say that we are better morally than our non-Catholic friends and associates?' If we aren't, we should start right now to make our lives an example of the beauty, truth and holiness of the Catholic religion"

Father Van Berkel, who was ordained to the priesthood in Appleton in 1933, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton G Van Berkel, 817 W. Franklin street, both of whom were honored guests at the banquet.

Announce Rally

Another guest was Joseph Doerfler, Kimberly, diocesan president of Holy Name societies, who announced that the diocesan rally would take place in Neenah-Menasha this spring. Other speakers were Joseph Dohr, retiring president of the society, who thanked the members, officers and spiritual advisers of the organization for their cooperation during the last year, and Lawrence F Schreiter, new president of the society. Father Cyprian, pastor of St Joseph church, also spoke, reminding the society that it would celebrate its silver jubilee next year and urging it to gather in again all those former members who had lapsed.

In addition to the talks, the program included community singing, led by Cyril Theiss; dinner music by members of the Appleton Civic orchestra under the direction of Milton Herberg; songs by a sextet made up of Arthur Diener, Ernest Nuoffer, Charles Hueseman, Jr., Wayne Turner, George Schneider and Ed Reineck; the introduction of guests by Toastmaster Robert W. Ebben; a humorist reading, "How Cohen Got to Heaven," by Ernest Nuoffer; and another humorous reading, "At the Ball Game," by Mrs. L. A. Lohman.

Louis Schweitzer was general chairman of the banquet; Theodore Sanders, ticket chairman; Ray Lang, in charge of decorations; Al Nowak, in charge of entertainment; and John Bergman, in charge of publicity.

Father Cyprian was in charge of the invocation.

Heckle, vice president; Mrs. A. W. Liese, secretary; and Mrs. Peter Diny, treasurer.

The new officers then took over the chairs. Mrs. E W. Cooney and Mrs. John Butler, past presidents of the society, were special guests at the banquet About 187 persons attended.

Cards were played after the dinner, prizes at contract bridge going to Mrs. William Ferron and Mrs F M. Hauch, at auction to Mrs. R. Forster and Mrs. Ed Massonette and at schafskopf to Mrs. M. McGinnis and Mrs. Mary Dachelet.

Old Globe Players Will Appear Here on Jan. 30

OLD Globe theater players of Chicago World's fair fame will appear at Lawrence college theater in matinee and evening performances Saturday, Jan. 30. Now on the road, the company has been seen at the Texas Centennial exhibition and in stock theaters of many western cities since its success at Chicago two summers ago.

The company will play Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" and Marlow's "Dr. Faustus," only Elizabethan play extant except for Shakespeare's works, at the matinee, and "Hamlet" in the evening. Acclaimed by critics everywhere, the company is now carrying its repertoire over the United States, acting again the brief versions of many well known plays by the English poet. The company is entering its third year, thus setting a new record for successful Shakespearean production on the modern stage.

The players have set an entirely new tempo in the Shakespearean play-acting field and have quite probably influenced the entire future of Shakespearean drama on the American stage.

The players will bring to Lawrence chapel three of their best known hits, "Taming of the Shrew" is an uproarious comedy with plenty of slapstick while "Dr. Faustus" is a tragedy.

"Hamlet," which will be presented in the evening, is a perennial favorite with Shakespearean actors and audiences alike.

Two of the stage's best known actors, John Gieglud and Leslie Howard, are producing "Hamlet" in big city theaters during the present theatrical season.

Plan to Renew Fight On Coast Guard Station

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—Representative Bernard J. Gehrmann of Mellen is planning to renew his fight for establishment of a coast guard station at Apostles Island.

In the last session, a bill introduced by the Mellen representative authorizing establishment of a station there was passed, but no funds were appropriated. Now Gehrmann will bend his efforts to obtaining an appropriation.

Gehrmann said that he will seek an early interview with Acting Budget Director Bell in an effort to secure funds for the station. He said he will explain the peculiar conditions which exist in the islands, making coast guard protection doubly necessary.

According to recent reports, Lieut. S. B. Johnson, 11th district commander of the coast guard, has recommended establishment of a winter station at Apostle Islands. Gehrmann said he would first plead for an all-year station, but would consider a winter station better than nothing.

Faulty Lights On Auto Often Cause of Crash

Safety Director Advises Motorists to Have Frequent Checkup

Neenah—"I was blinded" is often the furtive explanation offered by a motorist involved in an accident at night, Floyd L. Wright, secretary of the Winnebago County Traffic Safety council, said today. "Many accidents do occur as the result of improperly adjusted lights or the failure of the driver of an oncoming car to dim his lights," Mr. Wright declared.

Headlights are one of the greatest boons to night driving but can be a menace to human life and safety if the rays are directed into the eyes of drivers approaching from the opposite direction causing him to miss a curve or swerve into a ditch. Not only is it a safety measure, but correct headlight focus gives the driver of the automobile a better view of the road before him, Mr. Wright continued.

Replace Bad Bulbs

Cars with one light arouse uncertainty in the minds of other drivers and broken or worn out bulbs should be replaced immediately, it is advised. It is fairly certain that many accidents, or narrow escapes, could be averted if every motorist deflected his headlights downward when within 100 feet of an approaching car.

Though small and unobstrusive the tail light is one of the most valuable mechanisms on the modern motor car, Mr. Wright believes. It takes but a moment to determine whether it is in working order and is the only signal visible to drivers in the rear that a car is ahead. Periodic checkups of the complete lighting system at small cost may save garage, doctor or undertaking bills, Mr. Wright concluded.

Madison—John Callahan, for the last 16 years superintendent of public instruction of Wisconsin, and who is remembered in Menasha for his 17 years service in the school system of that city, is preparing for the spring election at which he will be a candidate for reelection. Although no candidate has formally announced his candidacy to oppose Mr. Callahan, it is generally expected in the capital that opposition to his reelection will develop because of his support of President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin in the recent dismissal controversy.

Many Badgers to Attend Inaugural in Washington

BY RUBY A. BLACK

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington — Governor Philip F. LaFollette, who will be Wisconsin's leading representative at the inauguration of President Roosevelt for his second term, will probably have to eat his lunch from a box in a parked automobile—or go without food from 10:30 a. m. until around 4 p. m.

The governors have to be in their stand at the Capitol by 12 noon sharp. It will probably take them an hour to get from their places of temporary residence through the jam. Then they have to proceed to the cars assigned to them for the parade, and then they have to parade.

Thus they will miss the luncheon at the White House to which they have been invited, although their wives will probably attend. But Mrs. LaFollette is not coming, according to Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr. The governor has been invited to the tea at the White House at 5 p. m., as have all the electors from Wisconsin and other states, the national committeemen and women, various inaugural officials, and their wives and husbands.

Governor LaFollette may return immediately, not attending the tea, his brother said.

The aides assigned to the governors have been advised to advise the governors to have their hotels put up box lunches for them to eat while they wait in their cars to join the parade. So the high-hatted gentlemen will probably eat most informally.

To Give Party

Senator and Mrs. F. Ryan Duffy of Fond du Lac are giving a tea-and-cocktail party for Wisconsin Democratic visitors at their home, to which about fifty are expected, including Badgers in Washington such as Leo Crowley, chairman of the FDIC, Arthur J. Altmeyer, member of the social security board, and Representative and Mrs. Michael K. Reilly of Fond du Lac.

Among the Wisconsin people who have notified Senator Duffy of their intention to attend the inaugural are: Democratic National Committeeman and Mrs. Charles E. Broughton of Sheboygan; State Democratic Chairman and Mrs. James Corcoran of Webster; Democratic National Committeewoman Mrs. George Givan and Mr. Givan; State NEC Director Matt Werner of Sheboygan; Postmaster and Mrs. John Kiley of Fond du Lac; HOLC Director J. J. McQuillan of Milwaukee; Postmaster John Fleissner of Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. William Rubin of Milwaukee; A. A. Abraham and R. M. Theissen, president of the Oshkosh Board of Water Commissioners, of Oshkosh; Assistant FHA Administrator Harry McDermott of Milwaukee.

Mrs. Gertrude Bowler of Sheboygan, former national committeewoman, and Mrs. Reichert of Sheboygan, who will be guest of Rep. and Mrs. Michael K. Reilly of Fond du Lac; J. J. Donahue and Harold Clark of Hudson; and Mrs. John L. Doherty, widow of Judge Doherty of LaCrosse.

The Broughtons and the Givans expect to attend the luncheon at the White House, which must of necessity be a stand-up cold luncheon because so many are invited and the time cannot be definitely set, as it will take considerable time to reach the White House from the Capitol. But hot coffee will be provided.

The governors and their parties make up the first division of the inaugural parade, with Gov. LaFollette in the second section of the division. This section will be led by the marine band. Gov. LaFollette will be the 27th state executive to pass the president's reviewing stand. He will be between Florida and Minnesota.

TVA Will Provide Cheap Electricity

Expect Manufacture of Phosphates to Cut Cost Of Fertilizer

Cheap electric power and phosphates necessary to the cheap manufacture of fertilizers, to benefit share croppers of southern states will result from the TVA development, Frederick W. Trezise, associate professor of engineering at Lawrence college, stated at a meeting of the American Chemical society at the Institute of Paper Chemistry Friday evening.

Power manufactured from the dams now being planned or built will be used in making phosphoric acid from phosphate rock deposits in Tennessee, Professor Trezise said. A fertilizer unusually rich in phosphates can be made by the new chemical process which will be employed at plants in the region. Phosphate rock will be treated with phosphoric acid, instead of with sulphuric acid as in the past to produce the new fertilizer.

The new fertilizer will enable farmers of the region to grow the legumenous crops which will restore the fertility of soil now worthless. Development of the new process has resutled in lowering phosphate fertilizer from $120 a ton to $40. Further reductions can be expected, thus enabling the distribution of this fertilizer at moderate price.

9 Face Charges In Alleged Fraud

suggest the wearing of a radium belt, for which the charge was $1 a day. Security on the belt sometimes ran as high as $20,000. After obtaining the security, the man left an ordinary belt and disappeared.

Checks were mailed to "fences" who cashed them and returned 10 per cent for their work. Mackett and Haney were accused of being "fences."

The government accused Haney of having cashed a $2,500 check of Herman Voelker. Ripon, the victim. Mackett was accused of having cashed three checks, two signed by Mrs. Josephine Emanuel, 80, Aiken, S. C. for $2,850 and $1,080, and one signed by Mrs. Anita Webb, Langville, Ohio, for $2,500.

Kahn said Mrs. Emanuel in all paid $26,000 of which $16,000 went to Schwartzman. The federal court here ruled Saturday that Schwartzman was entitled to a bill of particulars alleging his connection with the case. His attorney said that though Schwartzman's name appeared in the title of the indictment, there was no further reference to indicate his alleged part in the scheme.

Hearings Delayed Until Feb. 15 in Oil Probe

Madison —(AP)— Attorneys for major oil company executives, under indictment here on conspiracy charges, announced today that hearings for their removal to stand trial in Madison have been postponed until Feb. 15.

The hearings were scheduled for Feb. 1 in various parts of the country. Defense counsel said government attorneys agreed to the postponement.

Twenty-five oil firms and about 60 of their executives were indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of fixing gasoline prices in restraint of trade. All but 17 of the individual defendants have resisted removal to Madison.

Those who waived removal are to appear Feb. 1 before Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone for arraignment. Judge Stone also may rule that day on defense motions for the return of company documents seized by the grand jury and for releasing grand jury witnesses, including many oil company heads, from an oath of secrecy which they were required to take.

Strike Has but Little Effect On Steel Market

Other Outlets More Than Absorb Delayed Shipments to Car Firms

Effects of suspensions of steel shipments to General Motors Corp. and other consumers affected by labor difficulties have been negligible. Mills have sufficient outlets for delivery to absorb more than the deferred tonnages. In some cases steelmakers feel sufficient confidence in an early settlement of the strike to continue production of steel on specifications for automobile users, to be prepared to ship promptly when need arises, says STEEL.

Proof of the small curent effect on production rates is found in the decline of only one-half point last week from the week before, the rate for last week being 79, compared with 79½ a week earlier. Detroit operations gained five points and New England three; Cincinnati lost three points and Youngstown one. Other producing centers maintained production rates unchanged.

Buy Under Cover

Quiet buying of scrap by large steelmakers in the Pittsburgh and Buffalo districts has been done under cover, only selected dealers being given tonnages. The Pittsburgh purchase is reported to involve 35,000 to 40,000 tons and it is believed $20 was paid for No. 1 heavy melting, with $20.50 for railroad steel. Buying of scrap for export is increasing in the East and prices for that purpose have been advanced 50 cents, Italy and Japan are reported to be the principal foreign buyers.

Increased buying of scrap indicates confidence on the part of important steel producers that present heavy demand for steel is likely to continue for some time.

At Low Point

Railroad buying is at a low ebb, partly because of heavy lettings of rails, cars and locomotives late last year and also in a measure because of reduction in freight rates by abolition of surcharges at the year end. Final statistics of freight car lettings in 1936 show a total of 64,643 units, the largest since 1929, when 106,105 were let. In December car bookings totaled 23,450, by far the largest number of any month in 1936. Effects of loss of revenue from removal of the surcharge is reflected in suspension of formal contract for 1500 cars by one railroad, awaiting evidence in its revenues of the effect of surcharge loss.

Rail mills have decided in some instances to spread rollings contracted late last year and extend deliveries beyond first quarter. This is in line with requirements of railroads, which would not consume their entire purchases in three months.

At High Level

Structural steel placements are maintaining a high level, a total of 28,846 tons being reported for last week, compared with 16,544 tons for the preceding week and 26,841 tons for the corresponding week in 1936. The largest lot in the past week is 5000 tons for a dam in the Mississippi river at Clinton, Iowa, which also took 613 tons of reinforcing bars.

Shipments of finished steel by the United States Steel Corp. in December, at 1,067,365 tons, surpassed all months since May, 1930, and the total of 10,825,132 tons for 1937 exceeds any recent year.

Advices from England show the steel production rate of more than 1,000,000 tons per month maintained for the fourth consecutive month and a total of 11,698,200 tons for 1937, the largest production in postwar history for Great Britain. This exceeds by about 2,000,000 tons the best year since the war. In pig iron also output is at a continuous high capacity level.

Small Effect

Effects of the automotive labor disturbance on automobile production for the week ending Jan. 16 are smaller than expected. Production estimated by Cram's Reports was 91,685 untis, compared with 96,780 for the preceding week, a decline of 5095 cars.

Effective Jan. 15 makers of cold-rolled high carbon strip have advanced prices $5 per ton. This followed an increase in the two lower brackets of cold-rolled strip Jan. 1.

Strength of steelmaking scrap has brought advances all markets and STEEL'S composite of scrap prices is advanced 29 cents to $18.16. The iron and steel price composite is advanced three cents to $36.55 for the same reason but the finished steel composite remains unchanged at $55.80.

Lawrence Controls Ball and Defeats Coe College, 28 to 20

Gives Impressive Exhibition in Midwest Victory

Osen, Burton Set Pace With 8 Points Each; Kapp Shows Well

BY GORDON McINTYRE

THAT old axiom that if you can control the ball you can control a basketball game was driven home to several hundred followers of Coach Arthur Denney's Lawrence college cagers Saturday night out at Alexander gymnasium when the Vikings crashed through with as nifty a 28 to 20 win as you'll ever see. It was a Midwest conference game and gave the Vikes one win against one defeat and sent their stock in league competition soaring higher than a guy I know when he sees a blonde.

Straubel

Saturday's game was something of a lesson in basketball and frankly, a coach's triumph, for Denney probably played that game all week and certainly Saturday night as craftily as any mentor in the country.

The Vike coach knew that he probably could control the center jump with Junior Kapp playing the leading role. He also knew that under the enemy board Kapp and Cliff Burton probably could get a goodly number of rebounds and that whenever they were involved in a held ball they probably could control the tip. And under their own board they should get a couple follow up shots. And he was right.

Worked On Offense

For practically the entire week he worked to smooth off his offense and although there were several minutes in the opening period when it appeared the Vikes never would get through the Coe front line, when they finally cracked it they either scored or missed by a hair. There wasn't much wasted effort.

But what about the Viking defense against a Coe team that boasted one of the best forwards in the league in McKinley, bespectacled chap, and Kammer, center, who was dubbed "15 points if he plays?" Well, Straubel probably could take care of McKinley, the Vike coach reasoned, but Kapp probably would be too slow for Kammer and didn't have the experience, so that assignment would have to go to Cliff Burton. And if you don't think he was right look at the box score.

So with that setup the Vikes went out on the floor and they got the ball at center. But shortly after they lost control McLeod, guard, evaded Kapp and scored and then Kammer got a free throw and Coe held a 3 to 0 lead.

Lawrence, whenever it got the ball would slowly move down to its end of the floor and pass back and forth will apparently no opportunity to get the ball through or if it did, and there were several instances, the shot was muffed

Lawrence Takes Lead

But suddenly Faleide got the leather out in the Vike free throw circle and he dumped a neat shot. A moment later Osen was fouled and he evened the score at 3-all. And when a second or two later he broke away fast from his guard and sank another bucket to put Lawrence in front, 5 to 3, the Vikes had tasted blood and they were out for a kill.

Burton got a free throw as the Vikes continued to hang onto the ball and when Cliff pivoted around his man and cased up to the hoop

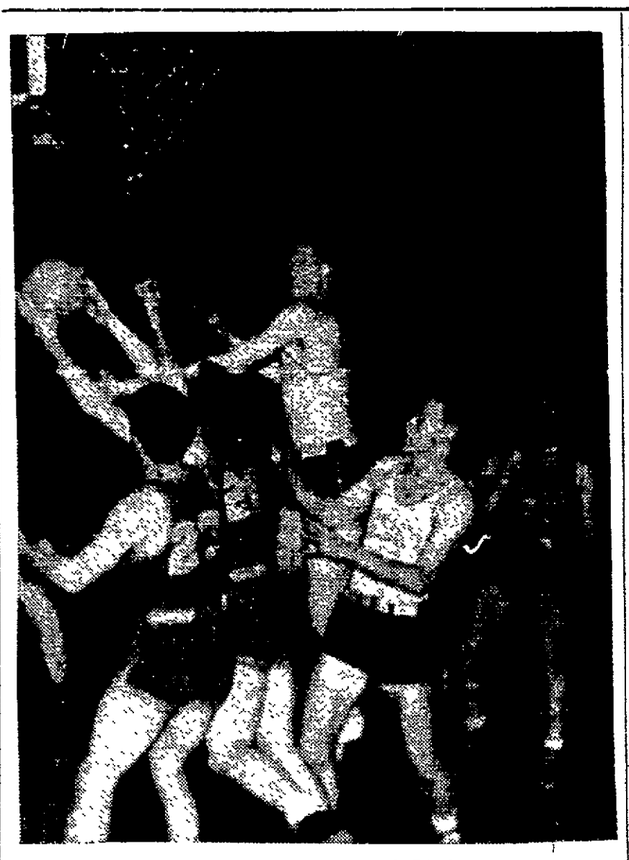
AT BELOIT TUESDAY

Beloit — Coach Lou Means' Beloit college cagemen will make their last home appearance for three weeks Tuesday night, Jan. 19, when they clash with a Lawrence college quint from Appleton. It is the second Midwest conference game for the Beloiters.

The Viking record so far this year is far ahead of the Gold squad's showing, with Coach Denney's outfit having chalked up four wins and one loss, as against one victory and five defeats for the Beloit aggregation. Both lost their first conference games, Lawrence to Carleton 30-19 and Beloit to Ripon 33-29.



VIKES FIGHT FOR REBOUND

Lawrence college basketball team defeated Coe college Saturday night in a Midwest conference game, 28 to 20. Part of the Viking success was due to ability to control the ball and the above picture shows a little action under the Lawrence basket early in the contest with a couple Kohawks and Vikings battling for the rebound. Kapp, Lawrence center, who turned in a lot of good work around the board and the enemy board, is shown hanging in the air and reaching for the ball. The Coe players in the foreground are Bazos, No. 23, and McLeod, No. 26, both guards. The Viking player trying to get in after the ball is Osen. The Coe player on the right, No. 27, is McKinley, bespectacled forward. (Post-Crescent Staff Photo)

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

WITH basketball fans singing the praises of both Appleton High school and Lawrence college teams as result of two highly spectacular games last week, the squads are preparing for return appearances this week. The high school meets Wisconsin Rapids here Tuesday evening in a non-conference game, and the college tangles with Carroll Thursday night in the first of their annual battles.

During the Christmas holidays the Terrors upset the dope by going to the Rapids and turning in a 22 to 19 win. It was one of the two games the Rapids has lost this season, the other being to the Lawrence frosh. However, Tuesday's game may be another story for the Terrors have played some pretty hard ball in recent weeks and if they don't play so hard and happen to take a trimming no one will care. They're almost entitled to a bad game pretty soon.

The Lawrence-Carroll game promises to be a thriller for the Pioneers are a high-powered outfit and Lawrence certainly should feel confident after its showing against Coe. However, theres this much to say, Lawrence will not have the edge in height like it did against Coe for Jim Knoblauch will be at the pivot position for the Pioneers and he's playing one of the few remaining games of his college career. Added to that the Pioneers have a high-scoring lad in Art Buck and a generally good team. Last week they gave St. Norbert a terrific beating at DePere and the Saints aren't setups

All of which means Art Denney had his work cut out for him again this week

Amateur boxing fans will have to go to Oshkosh for entertainment Friday night. The V. F. W. is planning a card at the Eagles with George Steffen and Frank Duket in one windup go and Wilbur Dunn and Eddie Strand, Poskin, in the other. Al Bobbins, Oshkosh, Al Stauber, Fond du Lac, and Archie LeMay, Neenah, who fought here last week, also are on the card.

Coe college had lost only one game in something like 13 or 14 starts when it lost to Lawrence Saturday night . . . . Those glasses worn by McKinley, Coe's star forward, are of special, non-breakable glass and therefore he need not wear a mask . . . . Coe college purchased them for him. . . .

* * *

Several weeks ago we saw our first professional basketball game at Oshkosh, the All-Stars versus a group of former Marquette stars, and frankly we weren't much impressed although we were willing to allow for a lot of things, among others the fact the competition wasn't so tough.

Sunday afternoon we saw the All-Stars battle the Whiting Ciesars at Kaukauna and win 40 to 31 with a last period rally. We were impressed.

The pros battled hard all the way and they certainly knocked each other around the gym with vigor that indicated a guy's job depended on a victory. True of pros in any sport, there were times when they conserved their energy, but whenever they got a chance to make a break, get the ball and score, they moved and moved fast.

The game had a lot of features about it that you won't see in any other type of ball. For instance, at least three times it wasn't a question of getting a shot but a question of getting the ball past a big hand parked right in front of the hoop. There were times when some of the fellows literally picked the ball out of the hoop to prevent a score.

During the game we sat next to one of the owners of the Ciesars and if you don't think he took his game seriously you should have heard the comments he made regarding the ability of his hirelings and the respect he showed for several of the All-Stars.

Because Harry Speelman, fiery Michigan State tackle, had become known to his mates as the "Fire Chief," he was presented with a huge toy fire truck for Christmas. The truck carried individual pictures of all his teammates and the 1937 grid schedule.

Delbert Lamb Is State Skate Champ

Buckstaff Boat Wins Ice Title

Takes Three Victories to Recapture Stuart Cup At Madison

Madison—(AP)—Guardianship of the Stuart trophy, emblematic of International ice skating supremacy, again rests with the Oshkosh Ice Yacht club until a faster boat than the "Flying Dutchman" and a better pilot than John Buckstaff establish a claim to it.

Buckstaff, recognized for years as world's champion, and Ray Schroeder, helmsman of the "Krazy Kraft," swept to victory in three races over the weekend and recaptured the cup which they relinquished two years ago to the Four Lakes Ice Yacht club of Madison.

The races were held over a 20 mile Lake Mendota course. Ice conditions were excellent, but lack of wind was responsible for slow performances in the two runs made yesterday.

The Flying Dutchman won the first race Saturday afternoon in the fast time of 43 minutes, 15 seconds. It duplicated the victory yesterday morning, but required an additional 17 minutes and 58 second to cover the course. The Krazy Kraft's winning time in the third race yesterday afternoon was 69 minutes, 16 seconds

Madison's two defenders were the "Fritz" piloted by Carl Bernard, and the "Miss Alice," which was guided by Wallie Haspell.

The results:

First race—Won by the Flying Dutchman, 43:15; Fritz, second, 43:25; Miss Alice, third, 46:06; Krazy Kraft, fourth, 46:18

Second race — Won by Flying Dutchman, 61:13; Frizt second, 61:44; Miss Alice third, 62:03; Krazy Kraft, dropped out — temporarily disabled.

Third race—Won by Krazy Kraft, 69:16; Flying Dutchman, second, 73:37; Frizt, third, 74:33; Miss Alice, fourth, 74:36.

Indians, Browns Trade Players

Solters, Lary and Andrews Go to Cleveland Ball Team

Cleveland—(AP)—The biggest baseball deal of the stove league season sent three of the Cleveland Indians' regulars to the St. Louis Browns today for a like number of Manager Rogers Hornsby's first stringers.

Left Fielder Joe Vosmik, Shortstop Bill Knickerbocker and Pitcher Oral Hildebrand were shipped along after several months of negotiations in a straight trade for Julius Solters, Lyn Lary and Ivy Paul Andrews, who play the same positions.

Baseball men immediately wondered whether Vosmik, who fell from .348 to a meager .287 at bat last season, would remain long at St. Louis.

The gold plated Boston Red Sox have been after the erstwhile Cleveland sandlotter since the season closed and were expected to renew their efforts to obtain him.

Ingvar Arneson Wins 1st Place At Ski Tourney

Takes Rapids Meet; Paul Bietila Hurt at Cary, Ill.

WISCONSIN RAPIDS, WIS.—(AP)—Ingvar Arneson of the Tri-Norse Ski club jumped 128 and 130 feet to win the fifth annual meet sponsored by his club yesterday at Syracuse Mound, south of here.

Gunnar Rebne, Port Edwards, made the longest jump of the day, 132 feet, but a fall nullified the effort. Arneson's 130-footer was the closest challenge to the hill record of 134 feet.

Eino Weimer, Gogebic range, was third in Class A behind Arneson and William Anderson, Chicago North Shore.

The senior class was won by Peter Hegeland, Racine. Frank Carlson, New London, was second. Lawrence Leslie, Milwaukee-Oconomowoc, won Class B.

Leslie Jacobson, New London, placed first in Class C and Richard Mitchell, Tri-Norse, was second.

PAUL BIETILA INJURED

Cary, Ill.—(AP)—Paul Bietila, Ishpeming, Mich., was in the Crystal Lake hospital today with a brain concussion suffered while competing in the Norge Ski club's tournament at Fox River Grove.

Bietila, the 1936 Class C national champion, spilled yesterday in a leap of 164 feet. It was the only serious mishap of the tournament, won by Casper Oimen, Anaconda, Mont., member of the 1936 Olympic ski team.

The finish was so close it was several hours before officials could determine the winners. Oimen, twice United States champion and winner here four times previously, scored 149.25 points with leaps of 164 and 168 feat. George Kotlarek, Duluth, Minn., was second, and Le-Moine Batson, Rosholt, Wis., third.

Oimen was adjudged the most graceful of the 56 entries. Battson's leap of 175 feet was the longest of the day. The slide record of 194 feet was made last year by Alf Engen, Salt Lake City, Utah.

111-FOOT JUMP WINS

Ridgeland, Wis.—(AP)—With a 111-foot jump, the longest of the day, Raymond Kempner, St. Paul, won the first annual tournament of the Snowball Ski club. He represented the Viking Ski club of Strum.

Bill Gilbertson, Cameron, was second in Class A, and Ted Peterson, St. Paul, representing the Viking club was third.

Tennis Group Blushes As Grant Defeats Budge

New York—(AP)—Tip: Keep your eye on a lad tagged Merson Dickman, who gets a pitching tryout with the Red Sox this spring. . . He showed in only nine games for Rocky Mount last year and came up with five wins, no setbacks and a very neat 1.86 earned run average. . . . Tonight's the night they beefsteak at the Garden in memory of Joe Humphreys. . . and his "Quiet, Pleez. . . in this cornah, winner and still champeen.". . . Jimmy (remember him,) Walker does the officiating honors.

Don't look now, but is the U. S. L. T. A.'s collective face red? . . . Imagine an upstart like Bitsy Grant doing all those things to Mr. Don Budge in two straight tournaments . . . And just after the tennis bigwigs had made Budge the country's number one player and little Bitsy only third. . . Joe Louis is now 10 to 1 to make it a very nasty evening for Bob Pastor on the 29th. . . Remember Schmeling.

Remaking history: One of the Cincinnati Times Star scribes lets us in on a new angle of the Dizzy Dean-Spud Davis duello of a year ago. . . Remember, ole Diz said Davis wasn't such-a-much as a catcher. . . And that if the Cards wanted Diz to pitch, they'd have to get somebody else on the receiving end. . . A few days later the Cards said the great one and Spud kissed and made up in a love feast (accompanied by soft music) . . . The latest dope, however, is that the love scene went something like this, with Davis doing the work—making: Listen here, my fine-feathered friend, I'm a team player and I'm always thinking of the team rather than my personal glory. But if you say anything like that again, the battery is going to be reversed. I'll do the pitching and you'll do the catching, and it won't be baseballs.

Tony Canzoneri hits the comeback trail any day now despite advice of pals. . . He'll try a few warmups and then look for the heavy sugar. . . There's a rumor around that Larry White has signed his San Francisco middleweight, Fred Apostoli, to a contract for five fights under the promotional hand of Mike Jacobs. . . If those pictures from Miami show everything (and there's very little they don't) Goose Goslin looks in the pink.

Could Glen Harmeson, who had a swell year at Lehigh, be persuaded to take either the Iowa or Texas Grid coaching jobs?. . . Add Al Schacht's nominations: For the finest throwing arm he's ever seen—Joe Dimaggio. . . They always get their man."

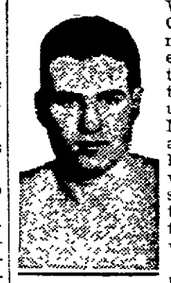
Oshkosh All-Stars in Last Period Rally to Beat Whiting Pro Five

Teams Give Interesting Exhibition Before Capacity Crowd

KAUKAUNA—Oshkosh All-Star pro basketball team brought its cage wars to the high school gymnasium here yesterday afternoon and with the Whiting, Ind., Ciesars put on a most impressive exhibition which the Stars won in the last few minutes of play when Mangan, center, and Vander Meulen and Goff, forwards, put on a shooting match that was sensational. The score was 40 to 31.



Hamann

The teams played before a capacity crowd and staged a great show. Most of the time they gave uncanny exhibitions of ball handling, shooting and general all around play but they added a few wild passes and overshot or undershot the hoop just to show they were human. In one instance one of the Ciesars pulled a stunt that a lot of cagers probably have been tempted to do but refrained from—he just reached out and grabbed his opponent with both arms and held him. The foul was committed against Vander Meulen.

Haarlow, Reiff Show

Bill Haarlow and Joe Reiff, former Big Ten high scorers, the former with Chicago and the latter with Northwestern, performed but failed to bring down the house. Reiff was in the game only a few minutes and was terrible while the All-Stars kept pretty fair track of Haarlow and he got only one field goal and a couple free throws.

The most sensational performers for the Ciesars were Tony Carp, giant center, who had an "on" afternoon and who scored seven field goals. During the first few minutes of the game whenever he got the ball and pivoted he counted. Not only that but he was so tall and possessed of so long a reach that even big Ray Hamann could hardly take the ball away from him. Vince McGowan, guard, another giant, also featured the Ceisar play with his reach and height.

Oshkosh showed a lot of polish and although it started slowly, when it once got underway there was no stopping. Augie Vander Meulen's handling of the ball and his shoots appealed to the fans while Jim Goff's left handed tosses, Mangan's efforts in the closing minutes and the work of Mullen and Hamann at the guards drew a lot of comment.

Scoring honors were pretty well divided by the All-Stars. Goff and Mullen scored three buckets and two freethrows each for 16 points. Hamann got six points on two buckets and two free throws while Preboski scored three goals, Vander Meulen two goals and a free toss and Mangan three goals and a free throw. For the Ciesars, Carp did most of the work with seven goals

Ciesars Take Lead

Oshkosh looked rather bad as the game opened and Tony Carp dropped three buckets in a row on pivot plays, Russ added two long shots and Young a field goal to give the Ciesars a 12 to 5 lead. Hamann cut the lead to 12 to 7 with a long shot just before the quarter ended.

Play in the second quarter was close and hard and the boys bowled each other around plenty. The Ciesars got six points with Carp getting a one-handed shot on a pivot and a followup and Stack a bucket on an out-of-bounds. The All-Stars got eight points, Vandy following up for a basket, Mullen getting a pair, one on a dribble almost the length of the floor, and Preboski the other basket. The count at the half was 18 to 15 for the Ciesars.

The third quarter saw the Ciesars get nine points and the All-Stars eight. Each club got two field goals, the other point coming on free throws. Hamann scored one goal for the Stars and Preboski the other. Preboski's basket was the result of some clever passing until the ball was under the board. Haarlow hit one from the side of the court and Carp followed up for the Ciesar buckets. The period ended 27 to 23 for the Whiting five.

Stars Get Going

Mullen opened the last period scoring with a field goal and a free throw when Haarlow fouled him. Tony Carp again got his name in the book with a pivot shot and then Jim Goff dropped a left-handed, one-handed toss from the corner that was sensational and Oshkosh trailed by a point, 29 to 28.

Haarlow scored a free throw to make the count 30 to 28 and Mangan got a free throw for Oshkosh. Mangan then intercepted a Ciesar pass and dribbled down the sidelines and up to the hoop to score and put Oshkosh in front, 31 to 30, for the first time. He liked the role so well he scored again and was fouled but failed to make the point.

The turn in affairs seemed to arouse the Stars and the shooting became catching with Vander Meulen scoring a basket to make it 35 to 30. Here Joe Reiff was rushed into the fray but he was so terrible that Haarlow went back into the contest and the Ciesars got a free throw.

With two and a half minutes to go and with stalling the order of things and being done exceptionally well, Goff broke lose with a scoring rash and canned a one-handed goal and a free throw and another bucket to give the All-Stars a 40 to 31 victory.

Packers Dominate as Pro Loop Reports Increased Attendance

(Note: This is one of a series of stories written for the Associated Press by outstanding sports leaders. They deal with 1936 developments and 1937 prospects.)

BY JOE CARR
(President, National Professional Football League)

COLUMBUS, O. —(AP)— Professional football attendance during the past year increased more than 20 per cent over the mark set the previous year, which we consider highly encouraging and even better than the increase noted in other sports.

The improvement in individual performances and the increased effectiveness of our rules, tending to encourage the offense, probably played a big part in this increase in popular favor of the National Football league.

There was not a single individual performance which did not exceed the previous year's record, and practically every team in the circuit gained more ground than in 1935.

Establish Record

Two new records were established, by Arnold Herber and Don Hutson, both of Green Bay. Herber set a new forward passing mark of 77 completed passes for 1,239 yards. Hutson, in catching 36 passes, also set a new high mark in that specialty.

It was a year in which many new players came into the league and made good, especially in the case of Tuffy Leemans of the New York Giants who held the league in his first season by gaining 830 yards The stars of the past were not totally eclipsed by any means, since Dutch Clark of Detroit again led the scorers.

The Green Bay Packers won the Ed Thorp Memorial trophy and the league championship by defeating Boston, winners of the eastern title, in the playoff game held in New York. It is the first time Green Bay has won the Ed Thorp trophy in the four years it has been in competition.

Along with the improvement in competition and attendance, the league teams, as a whole, fared better financially, with the same nine teams finishing as started the season and no changes for the third successive year.

Look Forward to 1937

We look forward to one of our best seasons in 1937, for most of the clubs in the circuit are laying plans for further improvements in their personnel, and the caliber of play should be improved It is this factor on which we base our hopes for developing new patrons

The rules, as now constituted and differing somewhat from the college code, have proven eminently satisfactory in giving the offense a slight advantage over the defense, and there is not much prospect that we will make many changes in the playing code. Forward passing from any point behind the line of scrimmage, running with a fumbled ball, and putting the goal posts on the goal line have opened up our game, and to a great extent, done away with tie games, there have been but three in the past two seasons of league play under these rule changes.

At present, three cities are applying for franchises in our league, so there is every possibility that additions may be made before the start of the 1937 season. In any event, a balance may be possible between the east and the west, which at present finds four clubs in the western division and five in the east. Action on these franchise applications will be taken at our annual meeting in February in Chicago.

Packers Wallop Coast Gridders

Turn in 49 to 0 Victory Over the Los Angeles Bulldogs

Los Angeles—(AP)—The Green Bay Packers, National Professional league football champions, smothered the Los Angeles Bulldogs under a landslide of touchdowns, 49 to 0, before 12,000 fans in Gilmore stadium here yesterday.

The Packers scored twice in the first period, three times in the second, once in the third and twice in the last quarter. The local pro club, with a record of 205 points scored to opponents 72 in nine games this season, three of them National league teams, was unable to get past midfield until the third quarter.

The powerful Packers' forward wall smashed the Bulldogs' attack to pieces and the Wisconsin team swept up and down the field at will.

The scoring stars were Don Hutson, who scored twice, once on a pass from Arnold Herber that was good for 67 yards, and Bob Monnett, who also scored two touchdowns. Ernie Smith, former University of Southern California tackle, kicked six out of six tries for extra points, and Paul Engebretsen, kicked for the other extra point.

BEARS COP, 51-20

San Diego, Calif.—(AP)— Crushing power and a spectacular passing attack enabled the Chicago Bears to smother Ernie Pinckert's All-Stars, 51 to 20, in a professional football game here yesterday before 4,000 fans.

Before the contest was three minutes old the Bears had scored and thereafter they continued to pile up points. They first reached pay soil when Jack Manders, fullback, kicked a 48-yard field goal and the ex-Minnesota athlete contributed three conversion points and a touchdown before he left the game.

Patty Berg Is Winner At Augusta Open Meet

Augusta, Ga.— (AP)— Patty Berg held the Augusta women titleholders golf championship today with a 54 hole score of 240.

MADISON—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin basketball team, defeated in its first four conference games, was a general choice to finish on the short end of the score again tonight in a contest here with the Iowa Hawkeyes.

Coach Rollie Williams, former Badger star, has available too much height and balanced reserve power to take a second place rating against Coach Harold Foster's lightweight squad. The average height of the Iowa players is six feet one inch. The Hawkeyes have won one Big Ten game and lost three.

The Wisconsin cagers, with Lee Mitchell, guard, and George Rooney, forward, setting the scoring pace, took a 43 to 31 beating from a slow, but rangy, Michigan five Saturday night. Mitchell, ousted on fouls late in the game, made 12 points and Rooney tallied eight Bob Weigandt, guard, was third with two field goals

Captain John Gee, towering Wolverine center, and Jake Townsend, forward, offset Wisconsin's speed by taking virtually complete control of the tip-offs and rebounds. Townsend played the entire game and collected 11 points. Gee, who scored two field goals and a free throw, and Matt Patanelli, guard, who had four points, were forced out of Michigan's lineup on fouls.

Each team used 10 players. The Michigan athletes committed 20 fouls, while the Badgers had 17. Michigan trailed only once, 8 to 7, and led at the half, 16 to 12.

Probable lineups tonight:

Iowa		Wisconsin
Stephens	F	Lowell
Gaddis	F	Rooney
Dress	C	Bell
Van Ysseldyk	G	Mitchell
Suesens	G	Frey

PURDUE VERSUS ILLINOIS

Chicago—(AP)—A Big Ten basketball drama which might be entitled "David and Goliath" will be presented to a capacity house at LaFayette, Ind., tonight when Illinois' small, fast team attempts to halt the rangy Purdue Boilermaker's championship march.

The battle is one of seven Big Ten engagements this week which wind up the current campaign until after semester examinations.

Other tilts tonight: Ohio State at Indiana, Michigan at Chicago. Iowa at Wisconsin and Minnesota at Northwestern. Next Saturday night Ohio State travels to Michigan's home court and Chicago goes to Illonis.

The Illini have come a long way since dropping their opener to Northwestern. By trouncing Iowa Saturday night, 42 to 28, Coach "Gaga" Mills' aggregation brought their winning streak to three straight.

Purdue rolled along under the impetus of an 41-30 win over Indiana's Hoosiers, with Forward Jewell Young getting five field goals to bring his Big Ten scoring total to 61 points.

Ohio State, after trailing at halftime 17-21, came back with a rush to nip Minnesota 23-22 before 9,303 fans.

Mike Mc Michael, Wildcat forward, scored seven field goals and three free throws as Northwestern trimmed Chicago 44 to 21.

Burton Shipley, basketball and baseball coach at the University of Maryland, captained three teams during one year as an undergraduate at College Park. He led football, basketball and baseball outfits during the 1911-12 term.

Claflin Opposes Repeal Of Fishing License Law

BERT CLAFLIN
P-C Outdoor Editor

REPRESENTING the sportsmen of Columbia county a petition drawn up by Attorney O. J. G. Peters of Portage, has been sent to Governor LaFollette and to both houses of the legislature by the county board requesting drastic changes in state game control. The petitioners ask that the resident fishing license be annulled because it "prohibits the right of many citizens from enjoying the sport." They want the power of opening and closing hunting and fishing seasons, now vested in the conservation commission, returned to the legislature, "because the commission changes the law without the sportsmens' knowledge." They ask that the size limit of all fish be taken off, because "fishermen throw back to die catches too small to comply with a size limit regardless of whether or not they are too badly hooked to live." They also ask Governor LaFollette to annul the Federal Stamp Tax law which governs the hunting of waterfowl, because "it deprives the hunters of the additional $1.00 to pay the state tax, and also the privilege to hunt."

Doesn't Prohibit

Let us analyze the four classes of this petition. It is difficult to understand how a resident fishing license "prohibits citizens from enjoying the sport of fishing." Whether or not the principle is right, if a fisherman can invest from ten to a hundred dollars in an angling outfit he surely can pay an extra dollar for a license. So long as we have a state-paid conservation commission they must have money with which to operate. It must come from somewhere.

It is the opinion of the majority of sportsmen that it is preferable to vest in the conservation commission the power to close hunting and fishing seasons when, in their opinion, a scarcity prevails. There is no question, however, but that in certain cases, due to pressure being brought to bear on the commission, the right to open seasons is abused.

They are absolutely right about demanding the removal of the size limit on fish—but this should apply only to trout, for, as they claim, fishermen do kill and throw back into the streams at least ninety per cent of hooked trout under seven inches. It cannot be prevented for the reason that trout, the small ones, are too delicate to survive the operation.

Hurts Trout Population

This restriction has without any doubt done more to destroy our trout population than any other one thing, save the netting out of the springholes in winter when the fish are propagating their species It would be a serious mistake, however, to remove the size limit on black bass, muskies and other hardy fish that can and do withstand being hooked and landed in order to remove the hook. In fact, by all means, the size of black bass should be raised to twelve inches.

The fourth clause of the petition is ridiculous. As well expect the sun to stop when Joshua commanded it to as to expect LaFollette to remove from the statutes a federal law. And that is what the Duck Stamp law is. The state has no voice in the matter. Further, the funds raised by this law are being used to very good advantage indeed.

Lawrence Cagers Beat Coe College In Midwest Game

to score, the 8 to 3 lead was almost incredible.

Once more the Vikes moved down into scoring territory, drew the Kohawks off to one side of the floor and when the opportunity presented itself Faleide flashed in toward the hoop, took a beautiful bounce pass from Burton and scored without being touched. It wasn't long thereafter before Kapp found himself all alone with the ball and all set for a shot from out on the floor aways and the ball swished through without touching the rim. And when Faleide dumped a long one shortly thereafter and Lawrence went into a 14 to 5 lead the Viking followers were in some kind of a seventh heaven. The half ended with the score 14 to 6 for the Vikes

During that 20 minutes Coe was utterly lost. It couldn't get the ball and invariably had to drop back in defensive position where Lawrence was content to pass the back and forth and kill time while occasionally making a stab to score and build up a nice lead.

Play Becomes Faster

The second half brought the expected. Coe had received instructions to go out after Lawrence and get the ball in the hopes that the harrassing tactics would bother and befuddle the Vikes causing them to pass badly or lose the ball on the 10-second rule. But Lawrence, on the other hand was instructed to get the ball down the floor fast to the forwards and they to break for the hoop.

And so it was a much more open and faster game as the second half started with Coe attempting to make it its game and the Vikes still trying to dominate and control the ball. As a result Lawrence didn't look so good in the first few minutes until time was called to hold a bit of a conference and figure out why things were wrong.

About that time Kammer uncorked two buckets for Coe and there were many who figured it was the beginning of the end. Kapp followed up a shot to offset one of the Coe buckets and Burton got a free throw. Then Lawrence started getting the ball down the floor to the forwards and when Osen scored and was fouled and made the throw Lawrence had a 20 to 10 edge.

Here Faleide was ousted on fouls and the outlook dimmed. But when Burton dribbled down the floor and scored and a few seconds later registered again to give Lawrence a 24 to 10 lead, oh boy, oh boy!

Coe Starts Shooting

With about five minutes of play left and nothing to lose Coe started tossing baskets from almost anyplace. Paveglio scored one from the distance and Martin, Coe's one-man track team, who entered the game late, scored another to make the count 24 to 14 and Coach Denney was getting ready to take a walk.

When Kapp fouled McKinley and the latter made the toss the Lawrence lead was only 24 to 16 but Osen helped things along when he was fouled while shooting and scored two throws to make the score 26 to 16. Then Straubel got into position for a wheel and a drive at the hoop and tallied to put Lawrence in front by 12 points.

Here Coe put on another rally and Paveglio scored on a dribble and Denney rushed Jack Crawford, another tall boy, into the game for Lawrence to help the Vikes get and hang onto the ball. Linduska scored on a followup shot to make the score 28 to 20 but with only a minute left to play Coe couldn't catch up and Lawrence had won a great ball game.

Cliff Burton and Cliff Osen were the two high scorers for Lawrence, both getting eight points. Ole's were on two baskets and four free throws while Cliff got three buckets and two gift shots. Kapp got two baskets, Faleide three and Straubel one. For Coe, Kammer led with five points.

The box score:

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: Dark, handsome Philip Page buys the Warrenton Courier and campaigns for better living conditions, backing the workmen of the Morris mill in their fight for better homes. He is assisted by Sally Warren, the attractive society editor. Sally is a house guest at the home of wealthy Mary Morris who pursues Philip despite her father's battle with him. Philip returns from a short trip with information that Giles Benton, a new arrival in Morris' employ, is a detective seeking a scapegoat for the Palace theater fire, the mill trouble and threatening letters sent to Morris.

Chapter 31

'Somebody's After Me!'

SALLY stood as if in a dream as Philip crossed the room to her and took both her hands in his.

"If you knew," he said "how desolate that house of mine was when I came back to it tonight. Always before I've been able to look across the street and see your light. There was always a chance that you'd be sitting in that chair under the magnolia in my garden—the way you were when I first saw you. But tonight I knew you were blocks away, in that huge rock pile Morris calls home. I had a sudden, horrible premonition that you had changed."

"Changed—in three days?" Sally laughed tremulously to cover her confusion. Philip was still hoding her hands in a tight grip.

"But you're not changed," said Philip.

At that moment there was a timid knock on the office door. Philip dropped her hands. He drew a deep breath, like a man who wakes from a day dream, and walked across the room to the door. It was one of the men from the outer office with a message that someone who claimed he had an appointment was waiting to see Philip.

"Send him in," said Philip. He turned to Sally. "That's McDonald now."

"Shall I wait outside?" asked Sally.

"No. Sit in the corner over there. McDonald will scarcely know you're here if you keep quiet. I'd like you to get what he says in shorthand."

Sally got her tablet and pencil and moved a chair, where there was a small table covered with newspaper files. In a moment McDonald entered and Philip promptly closed the door behind him.

Running Away Won't Help

"I'm sure glad you're back, sir," said McDonald, as the two men shook hands. "I've been mighty worried—didn't know where to turn."

"How is Mrs. McDonald?" asked Philip.

"She seems right well satisfied now she knows it's been fixed up about the operation," said McDonald.

"Good," said Philip, as if anxious to get on to other matters. "Sit down and let's hear what you wanted with me." He saw McDonald's glance at Sally. "That's my secretary. You can feel perfectly free to say what you like. She's as much to be trusted as—as I am."

"That's saying a-plenty," said McDonald. He sat down stiffly, holding his hat awkwardly with both hands.

"Now then—what's up?" demanded Philip.

McDonald swallowed and cleared his throat. "Somebody's after me to get me, I know. As soon as May gets well of this operation, I'm going to move to Glenwood. I got a brother there. He'll keep us till I can find something to do."

"If somebody's after you running away may not help," said Philip.

"I ain't running away," said McDonald. "But I got my wife and kids to take care of."

"Tell me about it," said Philip.

"About two weeks before the fire," said McDonald, "I knowed for sure they wouldn't take me back at the factory, so I looked me up a job and got one at the Five Points garage. A day or so after that, some of the fellows at the factory held a meeting at my house. They'd made up their minds to fight it out with old Joe Morris till he give them a raise and fixed their houses. I told 'em I'd help 'em organize all I could."

"And then you lost your garage job," said Philip.

"You knowed that?" McDonald was astonished. Philip nodded. McDonald went on. "I was fired three days after that meeting, but they never give me a reason for firing me. About that time, May was took sick and I tramped all over town, hunting work. It was about a week before the big fire when this fellow come to see me."

"Who?" questioned Philip.

"Didn't know him. Fellow said he'd heard I was looking for work. Said he was at the garage when I was fired out of there. He told me to wait for him at the Palace theater Tuesday night and he'd take me to see somebody that wanted to hire a good mechanic. I waited for him two hours, I reckon, but he never showed up."

"You didn't see him again?"

McDonald shook his head. "The next week, the day of the fire, I got a letter telling me the same thing. Said the fellow had been called out of town that night, but he wanted me to meet him the next night at the back side of the Palace. He said he had to work at the Palace, but told me when he got off, and said he'd meet me."

'Find that Man'

"Why didn't you tell me this before?" asked Philip sharply.

"I never thought nothing of it," said McDonald. "Except that this fellow had played me a dirty trick, having me wait for him and never showing up. Never thought they was trying to frame me till a kind of a lawyer fellow come to my house four days ago and wanted me to own up to setting the Palace on fire. Said he had witnesses that seen me hanging around the Palace."

"What was the lawyer's name?" asked Philip.

"Benton he said his name was." McDonald swallowed and cleared his throat. "I wouldn't own to nothing, but I knowed somebody was trying to get me. That's why I got to get out of town soon as May gets over her sickness."

"It's too late to get away now," said Philip grimly. "The thing we've got to do is find this man who asked you to meet him at the Palace theater. That's our job, McDonald. Go out and scour the town. Don't stop till you locate your man. We'll need him before they get out a warrant for you."

"They can't do nothing to me," said McDonald, and his blue eyes had a fighting glint. "They can't prove nothing on me because they ain't nothing to prove."

"The fact that they've gone to so much trouble already proves that they don't need facts to frame you," said Philip. "They'll manufacture their own facts."

McDonald stood up. He was no longer awkward or frightened. Everything about him bespoke determination.

"I'm a-going right now to find that fellow," he said. "If he's still in town, I'll find him."

"Good," said Philip. "Keep in touch with me and let me know if anything turns up. Remember, we're behind you here."

The two men shook hands and McDonald went out.

Man in Denmark Is Going 'Wild West'

Helena, Mont. —(AP)— It must be that some of the tales of Helena's wild and wooly past have filtered through to far off Denmark, Postmaster Harry Hendricks commented as he read Jens F. Moller's inquiry about the price of "sombrero, cowboy boots, goat skin chaps and revolver."

The letter, postmarked Odens, Denmark, was addressed to the "largest shop which is dealing in cowboy boots, hats, etc."

"I wrote him that he can spend from $100 to $500 for the outfit, depending on how many frills he wants thrown in," said the merchant to whom Hendricks gave the letter.

Use Preliminary Play to Set Up Finesse Position

BY ELY CULBERTSON

When the opponents hold two or more intermediate cards you must make a preliminary play to establish the final finesse position.

NORTH

WEST ♠ Q 6 5 — EAST ♠ K 7 3

SOUTH
♠ 8 4 2

South leads the deuce, West plays low and North finesses, playing the ten. East wins with the king. But now observe that North's jack is promoted to third rank in the suit. When South again leads, a finesse against West's queen will allow North to win two tricks.

WEST ♠ K 10 4 — EAST ♠ Q 8 3

SOUTH
♠ 8 5 2

Here South leads the deuce, West plays low, and North plays the nine. This is a finesse within a finesse, seeking to give North's J-9 tenace the function of equals by finding the intermediate card, the ten, in favorable position. Since West holds the ten. East must play the queen, and the situation now is the same as in the example above.

AMAZING LUCK.

Today's hand is presented more as a miracle of luck than as an instance of excellent play.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	5 clubs	Pass
6 clubs	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's bidding not only was extraordinarily bad, but the added opprobrium of "trapping" must be laid to it. South's four club bid was the strongest kind of urge for his partner to stretch to five. North obligingly "stretched" and then South blithely went on to a slam. Not more than once in a thousand times would declarer be able to make his contract against the cards held by the opponents, but this was that time.

West opened the heart king and followed it with the ace, which declarer ruffed. The ace and king of diamonds were laid down and the miracle began to develop. East's doubleton queen fell. This was only the beginning, however. The slam still would have been impossible, except for the fact that the club king lay singleton. The ace of clubs dropped the king, and two more rounds removed West's trumps. The spade ace provided entry for discards on dummy's two diamond tricks.

I can only hope, for the declarer's sake, that he did not allow himself to become encouraged by his success on this hand. It was, as I said before, a miracle of luck, not good play.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: How should a hand be valued in order to make a penalty double?

Answer: Count your honor tricks, exclusive of trump tricks. Count as winners guarded honors in the opponents' trump suit and, whenever they are certain to develop, ruffers. Add the minimum number of honor tricks shown by partner's bids. Subtract the total from thirteen, the difference being the trick taking limit of the opponents. If this limit is at least two tricks short of the opponents' contract, and if you cannot expect a greater gain at a bid of your own, make a penalty double.

My Neighbor Says—

To kill roots and weeds that may spring up in garden paths and walks, as soon as the days grow warmer, mix one pound of rock salt in a gallon of water and pour over weeds.

Frozen meat should be placed in the kitchen for several hours before it is cooked. Meat thawed quickly is invariably tough.

A piece of cheese the size of a walnut added to potato or onion soup gives it a rich creamy taste.

The texture of griddle cakes will be much finer if the white of egg in mixing is separated from the yolks and added last to batter.

Paris Restaurants Make Credit 'Harder'

There was a time when patrons whose credit was well known to a Parisian restaurant proprietor—even to the head waiter—particularly, to the dame au comptoir—finding themselves without the necessary "de quoi" for footing the bill, would scratch their name, or even initials, on the back of "L'addition," and all would be well.

This convenient system no longer obtains. Now clients who lack the "de quoi," no matter how well their credit be established, are seen laboriously writing several words on the back of the unpaid bill.

According to a ruling of the Court of Appeal, which recently cost a restaurant proprietor several thousand francs and caused his colleagues to take no more chances, an obligation of the sort in question in order to be legal must be endorsed on the reverse side, not merely with the full name and address of the endorser, but this must be preceded by the words, "bon pour la somme de" with the amount written out in full.

NEW JEWELRY SPARKLES

New York —(AP)— Color and sparkle are important in the new jewelry. Bright blue and red stones are set in red gold. Diamonds quiver on spring settings in ear-rings and tiaras.

Old-Fashioned Flannel

Old-fashioned flannel dressed up in new guises makes some of the smartest winter house coats. Here you see it in a rich raspberry, which lends a flattering glow to the skin, treated with a new finish that makes it tailor well. The coat ties at the neck and waistline and buttons down the front. It makes a practical house robe for cold winter nights.

Lumberjacks and Their Work

LUMBERJACKS AND THEIR WORK

I—Forests and Lumber Camps

Nine hundred million acres of woods and forests! That is an estimate of the ground covered by trees on this continent.

The number of acres is equal to almost one and a half million square miles.

View of a Lumber Camp.

North America has far more trees than Europe, also a greater number of different kinds. More than 500 kinds of native North American trees have been counted.

Early settlers cut down the trees at a rapid rate. They wanted to clear the land so they could plant crops on it. Some of the wood was used to build cabins, houses, barns and fences.

The forests of today are not nearly so widespread as in former times, but the lumber industry is important. During the past 10 years, forests of the United States and Canada have supplied an average of about 25,000,000,000 board feet of lumber each year. A "board foot" is a piece of lumber one foot square, but only one inch thick. If you had a plank 10 feet long, one foot wide and one inch thick, it would contain 10 board feet.

The lumber cut on our continent each year is enough to build a boardwalk four feet wide, and five inches thick, from the earth to the moon.

To get wood out of the forests—that is the job of the "lumberjacks"! They are strong, sturdy men, and they know their trade very well.

After the managers of a lumber company decide to cut a certain forest or stretch of woodland, men are sent to the region to plan the work. The path of a roadway into the heart of the woods is marked out, and also the site of the lumber camp.

Crews of workers cut down trees to make the roadway, and to build cabins. In many parts of the United States and Canada, it is the custom for lumberjacks to get their camps ready in the autumn, and to live in them all through the winter—far from the city. Winter is a good time to work because logs can be placed over runners, and hauled across snow-covered ground.

The work is hard, and often the weather is very cold. In some places the lumberjacks find the temperature going down as low as 40 to 50 degrees below zero.

More yellow pine is obtained from North American forests than any other lumber. Next to yellow pine comes the wood of the Douglas fir. A good-sized Douglas fir may supply enough lumber to build a 10-room house. Other important lumber trees are the yellow poplar, the oak, the ash and the cypress.

Simplifying Life Often Is Good Rule to Follow

BY ANGELO PATRI

"O, Mother, is it you? I'm so glad to see you. I'm just about out of my mind trying to set this place in order. Mattie is the most untidy child ever I saw, and Phil is just as bad. I've been picking up their things all morning, and now I have to go to their rooms and see if I can't make some head and tail to them. Just come and see the state they have their rooms in. And me forever telling them to put things in their places."

Grandmother put her bag on the table in her own room, hung her coat on a hanger in the closet, brushed her hat and put it in a bureau drawer and faced her daughter. "So? Let's go look at the mess. I'm ready, if you give me an apron."

"Goodness, you can't find a thing in this house. I put two aprons in here a couple of days ago, and now you can't find one of them. O, here's one. A bit mussed up, but it is clean. Those children get into everything."

The little girl's room was a picture of disorder. Dresses lay on the radiators, on the chairs, on the floor. Toys were scattered everywhere, on the bed and under it. Books and shoes and hats littered the floor of the closet. The bureau drawers were overflowing, a gay array of ribbons, silks and sweaters, streaming down in front.

"Now isn't that awful for a girl eleven years old? Not a thing in its place. What would you do? I have to come here twice a week or you couldn't get into the room."

"Well, Sara, if this were my job I'd simplify it by taking out two of every three things in the room."

"How could I? She needs them."

"No, she doesn't. How many dresses does she really need? I'd say that three school dresses were plenty. From where I stand now I count ten, and I suppose there are more underneath things. Simplify matters and the children can manage better.

"Take these things and sort them. Pack those that are not needed immediately in a trunk and stow it in the store room. Take away all the extra books, extra toys, all the clutter that is not needed. Strip the room to its bare necessities. Then the child can see what there is to be done and do it. The number of things here is enough to make you dizzy. What do you suppose it does to Mattie?"

Reluctantly Mattie's mother obeyed.

"No, put the others in, too," grandmother would say as she saw mother holding out this pretty dress, and that cute hat. "She needs very little. Give her even less than that and she will learn to care for it."

The boy's room was stripped the same way, only the things he actually used being left there.

"Well, I must say the rooms look better. More space, more light, and certainly more order. What will they say, though?"

"Never mind what they say. If life seems cluttered and confused, try simplifying it. That's a good rule."

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Drink Water If You Want Lovely Skin

BY ELSIE PIERCE

DON'T stop me if you've heard this one about the value of water to health. But I'm not going to stop with the health point of view. For somehow we women fail to respond to health sermons. The glamour of beauty is bound to get more of a response. So let's talk about beauty and how water enters the picture.

The eight glasses of water a day theory has been debunked. Most authorities agree that eight glasses of liquid is what the body requires and fruit juices, vegetables, composed chiefly of water, soups, coffee, tea and milk may be called upon to supply some of the fluid content; but they should not be allowed to take the place of water entirely. A glass of water or perhaps two before breakfast is a fine way to start the day. Many people prefer it hot and add lemon juice. It's a good cocktail, sets you up right. Try to avoid sugar in this cocktail if you can. Another few glasses of water through the day, preferably between meals.

Bear in mind that the body is composed of a multitude of cells of which the chief constituent is water. We lose water through breathing, through the pores of the skin by perspiration and through natural evacuation. This water loss should be replaced in order to keep the fluid level of the body. During the winter we perspire less, which ordinarily would mean that the water loss is less. However, water loss is governed by humidity more than by temperature. In artificially heated homes the air is usually very dry and a lot of water is lost as a result. Therefore we should continue to drink water during the winter months.

What if we don't? Dry skin, chapped lips, lustreless hair and eyes result. What if we do "drink plenty of water"? Ah, there's the beauty of it. I quote from notes made during a lecture by a physician a few years ago:

"Water has a sparkle, clear, beautiful—and the woman who drinks a lot of water usually boasts a thin, transparent, beautiful skin with the clarity of water about it. Her eyes are clear and sparkling too. Conversely, a thick, dull skin usually suggests a lack of water among other things. Thin and nervous people usually sin on the insufficient water side.

"We all know that water helps to wash away wastes, helps the kidneys and intestines to function properly. But how many of us know that water helps to keep muscles firm and complexions clear?"

Now will you turn on the faucet?

My complete new booklet "Reduce by Diet" (Booklet 201) is yours for ten cents. It covers the subject thoroughly. Send for it, giving your name and full address to The Bell Library, care this newspaper, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

CUTTING THE WEDDING CAKE

Dear Mrs. Post: I was at a very miniature wedding reception recently. In fact, there were only ten persons present. But it was one of the loveliest after-wedding parties I have ever known. It was late afternoon and almost dark, the dining table was set with a lace cloth and candelabra, there was a small bride's cake ornamented with the wedding couple's first names and a bride and groom figurine set on top, and there was champagne to drink the traditional toasts. Unlike all other weddings at which I have been, at this one I sat close enough so that I could watch the wedding cake being cut, and I never before realized that this could be such a task. The bride pierced the cake with the point of the blade but when she tried to bring the side of the blade down through the cake, the slice broke into many pieces. One of the guests took the knife then but her luck was just about the same I have wondered since the wedding whether there was any right way to cut a wedding cake, or it is, as in this case, just a matter of chance.

Answer: Of course you don't tell me whether the cake was not very fresh, or perhaps the knife very dull. In any case, the best way to cut wedding cake is to spear it first and with the knife in this same point down position, continue to stab the slice all the way across. If after the first stab is made, the knife blade is brought down as though it were a lever, the piece invariably crumbles even though the blade is very sharp.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a sister only eleven years old, but big for her age. She is my only sister and at an age that seems to make it impossible to include her in my wedding party either as a flower girl or as a bridesmaid, and yet I know the poor child will be heartbroken if you can't find some place for her.

Answer: Make her a junior bridesmaid. That means that she wears a dress as nearly as possible like those worn by the bridesmaids, but modified to suit her age. If you have a maid of honor, your sister should follow the ushers either walking alone or else walking with another junior bridesmaid. If she walks immediately before you, this would make her your maid of honor, which she can perfectly well be if you have not already invited your best friend

Marry for Companionship To Guarantee Happiness

BY DOROTHY DIX

What should people marry for? Not for infatuation. Not for mere physical attraction. Not for a love that cannot justify itself. Not for the infatuation that makes a middle-aged married man divorce a good wife to marry a gold-digging flapper, or that makes a girl wreck her life by marrying a drunkard or a ne'er-do-well. Infatuation is the madness of a moment. It does not last. Passion dies of satiety and then nothing is left but dead ashes on a cold hearth and the bitter memory of folly.

DOROTHY DIX

Not for beauty. A pretty face and a handsome form catch the eye, but they cannot hold it if they have nothing other than good looks. Better a chromo that is alive, vivid, witty and stimulating than a living picture that is nothing but a parlor ornament. No marriages are more tragic than those of the men who have led little pink and white and fluffy golden-haired dolls to the altar who hadn't a brain under their finger waves and been bored to death by them ever after. Nor do the women fare better who marry men because they look like godlings, but who never live up to the part.

Besides, those who marry for beauty are bound to lose in the end, because good looks do not last. Time takes its toll of even the fairest. It turns the most lustrous locks gray; it withers the smoothest cheek; it turns the most lissom figure into a feather bed or a telephone post, and who then so unattractive as those whose attractions have only been of the flesh? No figure more pathetic than Miss America after she has begun to dye her hair and have her face lifted, unless it is the tubby old grandpa wheezing along on his cane who was once a matinee idol over whom the girls went crazy.

Not for money. Connubial bliss is not sold over the counter, and one of the things that money cannot buy is a happy marriage. Poor boys and girls hungering for luxuries and good times do not believe this. They think that if they had closets full of good clothes; if they could live in palaces and speed about in fine cars and rush around from winter resort to summer resort and have all the money they wanted to spend, they would be perfectly happy, no matter if the price they paid for all these good times was being married to men and women old enough to be their grandparents, or to dullards, or selfish tyrants, or even to those so physically repugnant that their touch made them sick.

But, alas, they soon find out that mere possessions can pall upon you; that you can cease to get a thrill out of a new frock when you have too many clothes already; that you cannot bring the appetite to an everyday feast that you brought to an occasional good dinner; that a house in which there is no love is not a home, no matter if it is a palace. No mercenary marriages are happy, as you can see by watching the hard faces of the women who have sold themselves for money and the cowed look of the men who have to go to their wives for pocket change.

The only thing to marry for is companionship. That is the only thing that is the real, genuine, blown-in-the-bottle guarantee of domestic happiness. The only thing that keeps marriage from being just an endurance test and turns it into a joyous and thrilling adventure is for a husband and wife to be so congenial and so interested in each other that they can spend fifty years together without ever talking out or boring each other.

It doesn't matter whether a woman is pretty or homely, whether she is brilliant or just so-so; it doesn't even matter whether a couple is rich or poor, if they have the same tastes and habits, if they enjoy doing the same things, if they like to read the same books and go to see the same movies, they will be happy together. They will be good company for each other; they will never have a dull and sodden moment together and they will never be running away from home to find some one who "understands" them.

It is a pity that young people put so little stress on this matter of companionship when they are picking out their husbands and wives. For it is the thing that counts most in making marriage a success. If only instead of asking does he or she thrill me and raise my blood pressure, boys and girls would ask: Does he or she entertain me and keep me from yawning; if only instead of considering how much money he or she has, they would ask that sort of a line of conversation does he or she possess; if instead of looking for soul mates they picked out some one who had the same politics and liked the same kind of pie that they did, there would be mighty few divorces.

WALKS OFF DOCK

Southhampton, England—(AP)— So excited was Mrs. S. Mills of Portsmouth, when she saw her brother-in-law on the deck of the incoming army transport S. S. California, that, still waving her handkerchief, she walked off the quay side and fell into the dock.

For a moment she struggled frantically in the water as the vessel, nearing the quay, threatened to crush her. Then she was rescued and hauled to safety.

Home 'Gadgets' Broadcast Noise, It Is Reported

Physicist Blames Sympathetic Vibration for Racket.

The discovery of noise broadcasting stations in household and other machines, accunting for much of the racket which physicians say is bad for the nerves, was recently reported to the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

One of thees "stations" was the blades of an electric fan. When tested this fan was entirely noiseless, said Ernest J. Abbott of the Physics Research Company, Ann Arbor, Mich. The motor also was noiseless.

Yet when the two got together they made a racket. The noise cost a lot of money, because it was in a refrigerator, the manufacturer of which was buying special motors for quietness, says The Associated Press.

Investigation of the fan blades solved the mystery. The blades had some vibrations which were the same as those of the motor. Although the motor vibrations were inaudible, the fan blades picked them up and "broadcast" them. Changing the shape of the fan stopped the noise.

All through the racket field, Mr. Abbott found, there were parts which did similar loud-speaker tricks. They are hard to find, but once known are not hard to cure.

2 Stations

The moan of the rear axle in the automobile, he said, had two broadcasting stations. One is the floor of the car, which can be soundproofed readily. The other is through the axle, springs and frame. Hardly any of it passes through the driveshaft.

The "loudspeakers" focus this axle noise in certain parts of the car interior. The worst spot is just behind the ears of the driver. The quietest place is just behind the head of the front seat passenger.

It is seldom the real noise of the rear gears which causes annoyance, but one of the "harmonics," or accompanying tones of this sound.

The number of teeth in the gear pinion governs the noise, Mr. Abbott said, with the frequency of the vibrations, and the consequent pitch of the harmonic, increasing with the number of teeth.

New York —(AP)— Further complications in the General Motors strike muddied the stock market waters today and closing prices were highly erratic.

Labor conferences with the automobile company management were "on" and "off" during the session and the list rallied and reacted in the wake of confusing bulletins. Some utilities and specialties were in demand, but the motors fell back substantially.

The ticker tape was frequently late and transfers were around the 2,850,000-share mark.

After a "down" opening, support arrived on advices union heads were on their way to meet with General Motors representatives. The recovery move lasted but a short time, however, when word came from the conflicting forces that the gathering to negotiate peace had broken up.

In the afternoon selling wave a number of shares dropped as much as 3 points. Prices tended to stiffen a bit before the finish as Wall street had a revival of hope that a settlement of the motors row would be arranged before the situation became worse.

Some of the steels improved as the American Iron and Steel Institute put the current week's mill activities at 80.6 per cent of capacity, up 1.8 points from the preceding week at a new peak since the latter part of February, 1930.

Cattle and Sheep Are Down Sharply

Hogs Also Weaker in Chicago Despite Reduction in Receipts

Chicago —(AP)— Cattle and sheep led a sharp downturn in livestock values today as receipts in these branches of the market increased to a volume larger than expected.

The narrow shipping outlet due to recent declines in eastern dressed beef markets was a contributing factor in the market, livestock men said, and so, too, was the indirect effect of the automobile strike.

Cattle broke 25 to 50 cents, with choice to prime grades sharing in the decline.

Early lambs were bid 25 cents or more lower. The prospective top was around $10.25.

Although hog receipts fell 6,000 head below expectations, the market was weakened by sympathetic action with other livestock trades.

Colder Weather Brings Advances In Wheat Prices

Decreasing Visible Supply Also Helps to Check Selling

Chicago—(AP)—Sub-zero temperatures in the domestic spring wheat belt which are expected to move into winter crop territory led to late rallies of wheat values today.

Decreasing supplies of wheat in this country helped to check selling operations. The United States visible stock of wheat the last week was reduced 2,370,000 bushels, bringing the total down to 52,531,000 bushels, against 66,604,000 bushels a year ago.

At the close, wheat was unchanged to ⅜ higher, compared with Saturday's finish. May 1.32⅜-⅝, July 1.15⅜-½, corn ⅜-1¼ up, May new 1.12-1.12⅛, July new 1.07¼-⅜, oats unchanged to ¼ advance, and provisions unchanged to 15 cents dearer.

Tornadoes Caused 5,224 Deaths in Nineteen Years

2,800 of These Destructive Storms Recorded In That Period

Weather, in its more destructive moods, wreaks staggering totals of death and damage. Before an audience of fellow-meteorologists at the recent meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Atlantic City, as reported by Science Service, J. B. Kincer of the United States Bureau reeled off some break-stopping figures. Tornadoes, in the period from 1916 to 1935, struck 2,800 times, killed 5,224 persons, caused aggregate property losses of $230,000,000. Five of these whirling terrors killed more than 100 persons each, four ruined property in excess of $10,000,000 apiece. Yet solidly constructed buildings of steel frame or heavy masonry, can live through a tornado, as was proved in the Gainesville, Ga., storm last Spring, one of the severest tornadoes in weather history.

20 Million Yearly

Windstorms other than tornadoes, including the dreaded hurricanes of the south, during the same 1916-35 period piled up a total of $385,970,000, or an average of nearly $20,000,000 a year. A single Florida hurricane, in 1926, ruined property to the extent of more than $76,000,000; another, in 1928, snuffed out more than 2,000 human lives.

Irregular Trend in Bond Transactions

New York —(AP)— The bond market presented an uneven appearance today with plus and minus signs about evenly divided.

Brokers said big buyers were hesitant in offering support pending clarification of the federal reserve board's attitude on the predicted increase of member bank reserve requirements.

Rail loans, which would be particularly affected by any long drawn out stoppage in the motor industry, were off generally by fractions.

U. S. government loans were generally off, some issues being down around ⅛ of a point.

Fourth Victim of Plane Crash Dies of Injuries

Los Angeles—(AP)—Earl E. Spencer of Chicago died today, the fourth fatality resulting from the forced landing of a Salt Lake-Los Angeles air transport near here last Tuesday.

The other victims were Martin Johnson, famed explorer, James A. Braden, Cleveland manufacturer, and A. L. Loomis, Omaha investment banker.

Vast deposits of radio-active ore on the airline route over Newhall pass, a mining engineer suggested today, may have been responsible for two plane crashes and the loss of 16 lives within a month.

Wireless communication aboard both doomed transports possibly was affected by millions of tons of uranium, a radium-filled mineral lying just below the surface of the Newhall hills, said Charles Stanley.

25 Dental Assistants At Quarterly Meeting

Twenty-five dental assistants attended the third quarterly meeting of the Wisconsin Dental Assistants association Sunday at the Athearn hotel in Oshkosh. There were representatives from Milwaukee, West Bend, Madison, Watertown, Oshkosh and Appleton.

Miss Cava Wilson of the Sunny View sanatarium discussed "Control of Tuberculosis" and arrangements were planned for the state meeting which will be held April 22 in Milwaukee.

War office advices said fascist attacks met stiff opposition in Guadalajara province, northeast of Madrid, and in the neighboring provinces of Cordoba and Jaen to the south. The brief dispatches did not divulge the results of the fighting in the south.

Insurgent artillery and infantry attacks on socialist concentrations near the towns of Abadanes and Saelices in Guaradapara, they said, were repulsed.

(Fascist communiques from Avila said the insurgents made a six-mile advance toward Malaga, and captured Marbella, important seaside resort about 35 miles from Malaga.)

Wally's Cousin Is Poison Gas Victim

George P. Montague Found Dead in Garage at Waukesha

Waukesha — (AP)—George Pickett Mantague, who claimed he was a first cousin of Mrs. Wallis Simpson, was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in his closed garage yesterday.

Montague's widow, Pearl, found the body slumped over the steering wheel of his automobile. The dome light of the machine was lit, a newspaper was on the seat and the front door of the machine was open. Mrs. Montague said the fumes were so strong she was unable to enter the garage before airing it.

The ignition key was on, but the motor was dead. The gasoline tank was half empty, the coroner said.

Montague, who would have been 37 tomorrow, left home Friday without announcing his destination, the widow said, adding that he appeared to be in excellent spirits. None of the family was able to calculate the time he returned home.

The coroner said he found no notes or letters on the body and that he had learned Montague had carried no life insurance. Montague came here from Charlotte, N. C., in 1931 and had been employed as a pattern maker at the Waukesha Pattern works since then. He was the father of two children, Donald, 12, and Geraldine, 9.

While reluctant to discuss the Simpson case at first, Montague had said his mother and Mrs. Simpson's were sisters and that he was 12 when he visited the home of her stepfather in Baltimore.

He said the first word of the relationship was received from his father who keeps the family archives. His failure to recall Mrs. Simpson as his cousin when the case first became known, he explained during an interview, was due to her using her married name.

Milwaukee— (AP)— While spectators watched fellow fliers signal warnings of danger, Ralph Brichta, 27-year-old licensed private pilot, brought his crippled biplane and its passenger down safely yesterday in a perfect two-point landing.

Brichta was flying 2,000 feet above the airport when those on the ground noticed the plane lacked a left land wheel. Two other planes, one flown by Elmer Leighton, manager of the Manitowoc airport, went up to warn him. Meanwhile, signs were spread on the ground, an ambulance and cars equipped with fire extinguishers were poised for duty.

When everything was in readiness, Brichta came down, landing on one wheel and the tail skid, and received plaudits of excited spectators.

This accord was reached last week in a joint session called by Governor Frank Murphy in his office at Lansing. At that time strikers held five General Motors plants. Saturday afternoon they vacated three—the Cadillac and Fleetwood factories in Detroit and the Guide Lamp company at Anderson, Ind.

Governor Murphy was perturbed by the turn in events, and was in telephonic communication with various persons close to the situation throughout the night.

Boysen's Proposal

Boysen, the "Flint Alliance" organizer, had requested Knudsen to meet a committee of 12 from his organization as the collective bargaining agency of a "majority" of the General Motors employes in Flint tomorrow morning.

Knudsen's reply was:

"We are proceeding in good faith and in accordance with arrangements made last Thursday in the hope of opening the plants as soon as possible so that our employes can go back to work.

"We stand ready always to discuss with your group or any group of our employes any questions without prejudice to anyone. We shall notify you as soon as possible as to time and place for a meeting."

Over the weekend the union president claimed for the first time that the U. A. W. A. included a majority of General Motors employes.

Leaders in the "Flint Alliance" have alleged that the U. A. W. A. represented only a minority of the workers.

Troopers Remain

In Flint, where a strike riot broke out a week ago tonight, 2,300 national guardsmen remained on duty. Orders for the troops' gradual demobilization were revoked without explanation just as the first units were preparing to depart for their homes.

The union, charging that the "Flint Alliance" is "not a workers' organization," sent a message to the LaFollette senate committee investigating civil liberties violations alleging that the alliance was "either directly inspired by General Motors or has been handled through strike-breaking detective agencies which would profit by outbreaks of violence."

Martin's telegram to Senator Robert M. LaFollette asked that his committee "immediately subpena Boysen, with records of his organization," to learn the "backbround and finance of Flint Alliance and similar alleged law and order leagues and of their connection with General Motors."

WELCOMES PROBE

Flint, Mich.—(AP)—George E. Boysen, organizer of the Flint Alliance, said today he had sent a telegram to Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Wisconsin Progressive, saying he would "welcome" an investigation of himself and the alliance.

The telegram also suggested Senator LaFollette's special committee to investigate violations of civil liberties "make just as full and complete an investigation of the United Automobile Workers' activities."

The union telegraphed a request Saturday night that the committee investigate the alliance, which

Tabulate Information on Fishing License Charges Of Other States in Union

BY BERT CLAFLIN

Inquiries frequently come to this department asking the cost of resident and non-resident fishing licenses in states other than Wisconsin; the size limits of trout; how many states impose fishing licenses, etc. This article is compiled for the benefit of others who may contemplate writing us for information on the foregoing subjects.

Every state in the Union, with the exception of two—Maryland and the District of Columbia—require non-residents to purchase fishing licenses. They run in amounts from $2 in three states to $10.25 in one. Nineteen states charge $5 or more per license. In only seven states the cost to non-residents is less than that of Wisconsin. In 23 states it is greater. Among the latter are included chiefly such states wherein the sport of angling is an inferior drawing card—for example, Nebraska and Indiana.

Only two of them that are on a competitive basis with Wisconsin charge less—Pennsylvania and Michigan. These states, it is conceded, have far more trout than our state.

No Licenses

Six states do not require resident fishing licenses. The fee charged in ten others is less than that of Wisconsin. In Maine it is 65 cents; in Michigan, Illinois and North Dakota it is only 50 cents Nine states charge the same amount as Wisconsin — $1; five charge $1.10; three, $1.25; and three $1.50.

In most of the best known fishing states non-resident licenses cost far more than in Wisconsin. For example The cost in Connecticut is $5 35, in Delaware, $7 50, in Florida, $5 50, in Georgia, $5 50, in Idaho, $5.00, in Maine, $5.15, in Massachusetts, $5 25; in New York, $5.50; in North Carolina, $5 10; in So. Carolina, $10 25; in Tennessee, $5 in Texas, $5 in Virginia $5 and in W. Virginia, $5

Non-Resident Fees

Note that in a large percentage of what we know to be good fishing states the cost of non-resident licenses is nearly double that of Wisconsin, while the charge of resident licenses is correspondingly low.

In regard to size limits for stream trout—by that is meant the speckled, rainbow and brown species—five states, including Minnesota, Montana, Nevada and Wyoming, have none; California has 5 inches—and this applies to the coveted golden trout—, and eighteen other states have six inches. These include Pennsylvania, in which trout fishing has come back wonderfully during the past few years, Vermont, New York, Maine, Idaho, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Oregon and Washington—all noted for their trout fishing, a sport which draws thousands of people to the streams each year.

Mention Limits

Mention is made of size limits for the reason that many experienced anglers claim this restriction is extremely detrimental to the maintenance of the trout population, and for that reason should be abolished. They maintain it is a well known fact that fully 90 per cent of undersized trout hooked and released compulsorily do not survive: and with a size limit of 7 inches the fishermen have in the past perforce contributed greatly to the depopulation of the trout streams, by destroying the small ones while being forced according to law, to catch "legal" fish that are spawners carrying from 600 to 1,000 speckled, or from 1,000 to 3,000 rainbow eggs.

You know what "North Star" blankets are—so it is hardly necessary to go into the matter of the quality of these blankets. They are genuine quality—North Star Quality—in every way. Soft, warm, beautiful, with years of wear in them. In solid colors with a border in deeper tone edged in white. Bound in matching taffeta. The number of these blankets is limited, so be early. Blanket prices are rising. This one is a value we can't match again at $8.95.
